GERMANY IN STATE OF SIEGE

Radical Rioters Shot Down After Attack on Reichstag; Machine Guns Used

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
Special Radio Dispatch.

Berlin, Jan. 14—A state of siege throughout all Germany except the southern part and the areas occupied by allied troops was declared today by President Ebert, following the attack upon the Reichstag Tuesday by Independent Socialists and Communists, when twenty-two persons were killed.

Troops supported by machine guns were rushed to the defence of the Reichstag Building by Herr Noske, Minister of Defence (War Minister).

The announcement that twenty-two persons were killed in the fighting between mobs and troops around the Reichstag Building was made by Herr Fehrenbach, an official of the International Assembly and former President of the Reichstag.

30,000 IN REVOLT.

Many others were wounded. It is estimated that 30,000 Communists and Independent Socialists, most of them workers who left the factories to take part in the demonstration, surged through the Unter den Linden and about the Reichstag building.

After the demonstration had been driven off the bodies of those slain were carried into the court adjoining the Reichstag building.

The streets about the Reichstag today resembled a battle scene with barbed wire entanglements, troops on sentry duty and machine guns posted at strategic points. Reinforcements of machine guns and

TWO WOMEN FINED IN ROW OVER BABY

Mrs. Katie Tenn of Lucerne street, Dorchester, and Mrs. Jennie Jacobs of Morton street, Dorchester, were found guilty in Dorchester court today before Judge Churchill of assault and battery on Israel Silverman of Brighton street, West End. Both appealed. The assault happened on January 7, when Silverman called at the Tenn was fined $10 and held in $200. Mrs. Tenn's daughter was Silverman's wife and mother of the baby. Mrs Tenn was fined $15 and held in $200. Mrs. Jacobs was held in $15 and held in $300.

Believed to Be Dead, Sits Up and Shocks Undertaker

Newtown, N. B., Jan. 14.—Preparations for the burial of Mrs. Mary E. Mahoney, ninety years old, were under way here when an undertaker thought he saw the body move.

He looked again and this time saw the aged woman sit up and heard her ask: "What's coming off around here."

The burial has been indefinitely postponed.

NOT A SLACKER, SAYS DEMPSEY TO CHARGES

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, today answered the action and charges instituted by a number of American Legion posts which termed him a "slacker" during the war.

In a formal statement issued through his manager, Jack Kearns, Dempsey denies that he "slacked" or that he sought to escape military service.

Asked what he would do now that New Jersey had barred his appearance there in a championship fight with Carpentier, Dempsey said:

"There are lots of other places more suitable to such a bout than New Jersey, anyway. We are not letting that worry us at all." Kearns' statement follows:

"Jack Dempsey was not a 'draft dodger during the war. Anyone who makes such a charge cannot support it with facts.

"Just because some persons—prompted undoubtedly by selfish motives—are attempting to smear Dempsey's reputation with the mud of 'slacker' I feel called upon to give the public a true explanation of the situation—and let the public be the judge.

"When the draft call came in 1917, Jack Dempsey was placed in Class 4-A This was because he was a married man, and in addition was supporting a mother, an invalid brother and a sister. Dempsey made no claims for exemption.

"Some time later the draft board, readjusting the classification, placed Dempsey in Class A1, but almost immediately afterwards put him in Class 2B. He remained there during the rest of the war."

SAYS ALLIES WILL NOT DEMAND HINDENBURG

London, Jan. 14.—The Reuter Agency announced today that the allies have no intention of demanding the surrender of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, Field Marshal von Mackensen, and General Ludendorff for trial before an international tribunal on the charge of tolerating uncivilized practices by their troops.

A recent cablegram to the International News Service from its Berlin correspondent stated that German officials were anxious over the possibility of the allies demanding popular army chiefs for trial for fear it might lead to civil war.

ONE KILLED, TWO ARE WOUNDED

American Marines, It Is Reported, Were Attacked by Jugo-Slav Forces

London, Jan. 14.—A Central News dispatch from Rome today said that news had been received there from Spalato that Jugo-Slavs had attacked American marines, killing one and wounding two.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels stated today that he was without advices as to the reported attack upon American marines at Spalato.

Secretary Daniels said that he had a dispatch from Admiral Andrews, who is in charge of the naval forces along the Adriatic, which stated that everything "was going along smoothly" yesterday.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Germany has begun the withdrawal of her military forces from Schleswig-Holstein, the State Department was advised today. A prefecture has been established there and it is understood that several companies of American marines have been assigned to that country.

American marines are on board the vessels Pittsburgh and Galveston, which are in the Adriatic, it was stated. It is believed here that if there was any trouble it is likely it was between American bluejackets and the Jugo-Slavs, as American naval forces are frequently confused with American marines by Europeans.

ACCUSE ARMOURS OF UNFAIR TRADE METHODS

Washington, Jan 14.—The Federal Trade Commission today cited Armour & Company of Chicago in a formal complaint alleging unfair methods of competition in violation of the Federal Trade Commission act and the Clayton act.

The complaint charges that Armour & Company, by acquiring control of two competing concerns, first, the Lockport Refining Company of Chattanooga, Tenn., and, second, the Harris Tannery Company of Sylva, N. C., has eliminated these concerns as competitors in their respective lines of business and restrained interstate commerce in the commodities in which they dealt and tended to create monopolistic conditions in favor of Armour & Company in the sections in which these two former competitors operated.

HARRY NEW'S FATE IN JURY'S HANDS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—Harry New's fate is with the jury. At 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon the twelve men who are to decide the future of the alleged murderer of Freda Lesser filed into the jury room.

$15,000 IN SILKS IS STOLEN

Storeroom of Dress Factory in South End Looted; Goods Taken in Auto

More than $15,000 worth of satin, crepe and taffeta dress goods were stolen during the night from the show rooms of the Mayers Dress House Company on Oxford place. This is the second dress goods burglary in that vicinity in a week.

The Mayers establishment is on the fifth floor. The burglars, using false keys, entered a rear door and then jimmied their way into the room where the material was stored.

At least a truckload was taken, and it is assumed that the robbers took their loot to the ground floor by means of a freight elevator and then carted the stuff away in automobiles.

Less than a week ago the clothing establishment of I. Wetsburg, at No. 9 Harrison avenue extension, a few doors away, was broken into and $9,000 worth of silk goods stolen. In each case the burglars left behind a jimmy.

U. S. ACTION MAY CUT GERMAN REPARATIONS

Washington, Jan. 14.—Germany's reparations for the Scapa Flow incident may be slightly reduced by reason of the United States' refusal to accept the 2 per cent. reparation awarded this nation by the supreme council, it was learned at the State Department today. It is the attitude of this government that the portion of reparation which would have gone to the United States should be allowed to remain with Germany. The reason for the refusal of the United States to accept the reparation was that this government has never agreed to the division of the German fleet, but has taken the position that the fleet should be sunk instead of divided among the allies.

SALEM LOSES TROLLEY SERVICE TOMORROW

Salem, Jan. 14.—All Salem is prepared to walk to work tomorrow as a result of the ultimatum of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, announcing "restriction" of service. No truce in the trolley-jitney feud is in sight. Thirty-three jitneys have been licensed by the city council, and others will probably be licensed at the special meeting tonight. There is considerable criticism here of the city legal department for its failure to get an injunction against the road, stopping restriction of service. The city council of Peabody will act on the problem tonight.

MORE PAY, 8 HOURS, ON ITALY'S RAILWAYS

Rome, Jan. 14.—In order to prevent the national railway strike, called for tomorrow, the government today granted 100,000,000 lire for increase of wages, conceded an eight-hour day and consented to representation from the union upon the railway management boards.

CHARGE 'FRAMEUP' AGAINST 'REDS' BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the "Soviet Ambassador," who is to go before a Senate committee, appears on the right. With him are his secretary, Santeri Nuorteva, and the latter's wife and child.

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Sensational developments are assured when Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, American representative of the Russian federal soviet republic, appears before the sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee appointed to investigate Russian soviet activities in this country, Senators arranging for the proposed investigation said today.

Martens has promised to produce before the sub-committee a former Department of Justice agent to testify as to certain methods employed by the department in proceeding against "Reds" singled out for deportation, the senators said.

This former agent, now in New York, will seek to substantiate charges made by Martens and his secretary Santi Nuorteva, that "Reds" caught in the department's dragnet recently were deliberately "framed" by department agents bent on making a wholesale and sensational round-up of Russian soviet sympathizers.

He will testify as Martens and Nuorteva have alleged, that the "Communist Party" and the "Communist Labor Party" were conceived by Department of Justice agents as a means of uncovering "Reds' by persuading them to join what were "framed-up" Russian organizations in this country.

Martens himself will try to show by his own testimony that Russian soviet activities in this country are peaceable and legitimate ones intended to bring about an understanding between the United States and the Russian republic and to restore trade relations.

He is prepared, it is said, to produce documentary evidence to substantiate his claim that the United States and the allies have already ignored sixteen different proffers of peace from the Russian soviet government, Martens stated. As proof his mission here is a peaceable one he will offer in evidence more than $22,000,000 worth of contracts already signed in this country for supplies for Russia.

The Senate this afternoon unanimously authorized the employment of special counsel by the sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee appointed to investigate Russian soviet activities in this country.

The resolution was adopted without comment and without dissent, both Republican and Democratic senators having agreed the Moses committee should be given the widest latitude in investigating the presence in this country of Martens.

Root May Assist in Prosecution of Five Socialist Assemblymen

By International News Service.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Elihu Root, famed constitutional lawyer, may assist State Attorney-General Charles D. Newton in prosecuting charges against the five Socialist members of the Assembly which resulted in their suspension on the opening day of the session.

Attorney-General Newton was formally asked to assist the Assembly Judiciary Committee, which will try the Socialists, by resolution adopted by the committee today. He was empowered to obtain assistants. Mr. Newton, it was said, will request Mr. Root to aid him.

A sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee was busy today framing the rules of procedure to be followed at the trial, which is scheduled to begin next Tuesday morning. It is understood the rules will follow court procedure closely and Chairman Louis M. Martin of the committee will be judge of the admissibility of all evidence presented. Expulsion of the five Socialists has centred the attention of most of the nation upon Albany. Legislators today watched in wonder while a battery of movie cameras filmed the chief actors in the big constitutional drama which is being staged.

For the first time since the Legislature impeached former Governor William Sulzer, newspapermen from all sections of the United States are in Albany watching the preparations for the trial.

HELP NOT NEEDED TO GO, SAYS PETERS

Thousands of city employes stand to win nearly one and one-half million dollars in the biggest increase of pay the city ever made, according to Mayor Peters, who announced today that the increase would be added to the city payrolls April 1.

The only fly in the ointment to city employes is that Mayor Peters leaves the granting of the salary increase up to the heads of departments.

The sum of $1,490,000 will be distributed in increased salaries. This money comes from additional revenue accruing to the city through the increase of $1 in the tax limit recently granted for two years by the Legislature.

The only city employes who will not benefit from the increase are those who the department heads decide are getting the maximum salary now and those employes whose work is of such a nature as not to justify such increase in the judgment of the department heads.

The increases include $200 for policemen, firemen and other city employes, $300 for those who have not previously received increases, and $500 for officers of the police and fire departments.

In making his announcement, Mayor Peters warned the department heads assembled in his office that no "deadwood" must be carried on the payrolls and that positions which are unnecessary must be ruthlessly eliminated.

WARNING BY MAYOR.

"Every department head should investigate most carefully all the positions in his department with a view to eliminating those which are unnecessary," the Mayor declared earnestly. "His recommendations, based on his investigations, should be without fear or favor. If a position is necessary from the standpoint of good business organization it should remain. If it is unnecessary it should be abolished."

The Mayor warned department heads that in this respect they will be held "to the same accountability

MISS DEKAY IS BELIEVED TO BE IN HIDING

Providence, R. I., Jan. 14.—John W. DeKay, Jr., brother of Jeanne Anna DeKay, the missing heiress who disappeared from Hull House, Chicago, December 30, knows where his sister is is the belief of Judge Thomas Z. Lee, counsel for the girl's father. The latter is in Switzerland.

Young DeKay's reappearance in Chicago after dropping out of sight for three days revealed that he had been in voluntary retirement for some reason and led to the conviction on the part of Judge Lee that the young man knew more about the case than he was telling to the authorities. During the war young DeKay was an aviator.

FURIOUS BATTLE FOLLOWS ATTACK AT REICHSTAG

Military guards also were thrown about the Adlon Hotel, where the members of the allied missions are living.

ASSEMBLY IN SESSION.

The majority of the members of the National Assembly were attending the session of that body when the Independent Socialists and Communists made their first attempt to storm the Reichstag building. There was a heavy burst of firing outside which quickly put an end to the deliberations. Dr. Ahrens, formerly an attache of the German embassy at Washington, and several other members, were on their way to the building when they were caught in the line of fire. All escaped.

The battle was the climax to a demonstration of Independent Socialists and Communists in protest against the so-called "Betrieberaete-gesetz," a bill that would place the workingmen's councils in the various industries on a legal basis.

This bill is now up for the third reading in the Reichstag, or National Assembly.

DEMAND MORE POWER.

The Communists and Independent Socialists demand more radical laws, giving the workers great power in the management of the factories and industries—giving them, in fact, control of production.

An enormous throng jammed the front of the Reichstag Building, gradually pressing the cordon of green-uniformed safety police, armed with rifles and hand grenades, further back toward one of the entrances.

According to the description furnished me by an eye witness, several men in the foremost line suddenly seized the rifles of two or three military policemen, the crowd behind immediately made a dash for the entrance, and at the moment the machine guns opened a terrific fusilade.

PANIC BREAKS LOOSE.

I happened to be between the Brandenburger Gate and the Reichstag. Approaching the latter building, I walked, or rather shuffled forward, in the midst of a crowd of thousands. As the bullets whistled about our heads, digging vicious holes into the walls and buildings and splintering the Sonte columns of the famous Brandenburg Gate, terrified shouts rose from the throng and an indescribable panic broke loose.

"I was caught in the panicky turnabout of the great throng. Rushing from the Brandenburg Gate, for shelter in Unter den Linden.

Men, women and children piled up on top of one another in the narrow passages of the famous gate. Drawing back in the press of the terror-stricken mob I saw men lying on the ground. Whether they were hit by bullets or trampled down I could not determine.

The rattle of the machine guns kept up unmercifully. As if driven by furies the foremost portion of the mob pressed through the gate.

SEEK SAFETY IN HOTEL.

A considerable number of persons, including several women on the point of fainting, rushed into the Adlon Hotel for cover. Promptly the fashionable hostelry was locked and barred by five military policemen with cocked rifles. However, there was no violence at the hotel—only a bunch of panicky radicals seeking cover.

Today the hotel was still locked; none was allowed to go in or out. Firing is still being heard in nearby streets as this dispatch is filed.

The opening of the machine gun fusillade entirely changed the attitude of the mob. Extremely good-natured up to that time, it now grew ugly.

From a window of the Adlon I saw a German officer being dragged out of a cab, robbed and fearfully beaten. A moment later a rather well dressed man aroused the ire of the crowd and was cruelly cut up.

Members of the National Assembly as well as a considerable corps of newspaper men were unable to leave the Reichstag building.

HELD PRISONER IN REICHSTAG.

As the clatter of the machine guns opened the assemblage was thrown into great excitement. All those within the big Reichstag building were virtually prisoners, as was everybody in the Adlon.

Noske, by his action, showed he accepted the challenge of the radicals for a test of strength.

This January week was an eventful one a year ago, and the radicals have been threatening to "celebrate" the anniversary by usurping the reins of the government. A year ago next Thursday Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg were killed, and the Spartacists have made plans for a monster "memorial." It is more than likely, however, that the experience with Noske considerably dampened their celebration ardor. The minister of defence expressed confidence that he has the situation in hand. The political developments that may arise from the battle cannot be forecasted at this time.

Strange Dog Haunts Scene of Schooner's Destruction

New Bedford, Jan. 14. — Dr. Parker F. Slocomb of No. 52 Rivet street has been requested by a relative, a customs officer at Halifax, N. S., to ascertain whether there was a dog aboard the ill-fated schooner T. W. Allen, which sailed from this port and is believed to have been lost in a storm at sea.

A strange dog has been seen about the shore near Harborville, N. S., where wreckage, believed to have been a part of the schooner was washed ashore several days ago. The animal appears to be looking for something and will permit no one to come near him. No one for miles about that part of the coast ever has seen the dog before.

Dr. Slocomb was in Nova Scotia a few weeks ago, and it was he, by a peculiar coincidence, who discovered the wreckage of what is supposed to have been a New Bedford vessel.

The Allen sailed from New Bedford November 13, bound for St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, with a crew of twenty men besides six passengers aboard.

B. U. STUDENTS FAVOR LODGE RESERVATIONS

Boston University gave its approval to the Lodge reservations in a straw vote on the League and the Peace Treaty. The proposition of a compromise ran a close second. The vote represented only one-fifth of the university personnel. The College of Business Administraton, with 2,500 students, did not vote. Neither did the schools of theology and medicine, although they will register their views tomorrow. A total of 756 votes were cast, divided as follows:

REYNOLDS HERE 'SMILING' FOR COOLIDGE

Declares There Is Nation-Wide Demand for Governor's Nomination for President

"Smiling Jimmy" Reynolds, national manager of the Coolidge-for-President campaign, declared today upon his arrival in Boston that those he represents are going to make a 100 per cent, go-through-all-the-way fight to win the Republican nomination for Governor Coolidge.

That the Governor's candidacy is going to be taken right into the convention and made a real, straightforward issue was announced by the former Secretary of the Republican National Committee, who resigned to manage the Coolidge campaign.

"We are not against anybody, but we are for Governor Coolidge all the way," said the smiling and aggressive James B.

This is his first visit to Boston in his capacity as campaign manager. He recently opened National Coolidge headquarters in Washington. He will be here three or four days talking over the situation with the prominent men interested in the Coolidge boom.

He said that Boston headquarters for the campaign would not be opened at present. The New England movement will continue to be taken care of by Frank W. Stearns.

"NOT SECTIONAL CANDIDATE."

Throughout the country there is a very friendly spirit for Governor Coolidge," Reynolds said. When told that the Governor's friends were enthusiastic over the New England situation, he said:

"They ought to be. But Governor Coolidge is not a sectional candidate. He is the candidate who meets the best interests of all secions of the country. We are getting away from the old idea that a man, to win, must come from some particular State. The geograpdical argument no longer holds.

"This movement for Governor Coolidge for President is spontaneous. It is because people all over the country are saying that he is just the kind of a man we need for President in the four serious years before us.

"My purpose is to crystalize this sentiment into support of him by the delegates to the convention.

"This organized movement was planned and mapped out by friends of the Governor. He knew nothing about it and was not consulted until all arrangements had been made.

CONVENTION TO DECIDE.

"It seems to be more and more evident that the convention will make the nomination. No one will go there with the nomination bottled up. It is likely that a number of States will send as delegates big, broad-guaged men whose main purpose will be to vote for the man who will best serve the country. Some, perhaps many, delegates will go uncommitted.

"It is my personal opinion that those who go pledged will not be pledged so strongly that they will be unable to join with other delegteas and select the best man available.

"My reports show that there is a friendly, cordial feeling for Governor Coolidge in all parts of the country. It comes from a knowledge of what he stands for and what he has done. The feeling is natural. It was not stimulated.

"I hear Mr. Hoover spoken well of by men in all parties, and because of this his own political preference is a fog. We Republicans have so much eligible timber as compared to the Democrats that it might be said we are suffering from an embarrassment of riches.

"The Governor's inaugural message received favorable commendation throughout the country. Even some of the Southern Democratic papers printed friendly editorial comment."

HUNTING FRIEND OF MISSING HEIRESS

over long distance telephone from an old family friend in Mississippi that the girl is "terribly disfigured" by smallpox and is believed to be in hiding on account of extreme sensitiveness about her appearance, were new developments today. The latter message was received by Judge Lee from Colonel Samuel H. Buck, president of the Mexican Packing Company, with which the elder DeKay is connected.

REPORTS OF KIDNAPING.

Colonel Buck told Judge Lee that he was a close frend of the DeKays. His message followed reports that the girl might have been kidnaped by Carranza agents, who were hostile to her father on account of his well known sympathies with Huerta before the Carranza government was established.

Colonel Buck told Judge Lee that he did not consider the situation grave; that while it was "unfortunate" that the young woman could not be found, he believed she was in voluntary hiding, largely on account of publicity given the case.

A message from Miss Jane Addams of Hull House that she would arrive in Providence last night at 7:30 to confer with Judge Lee aroused expectations that new light might speedily be thrown on the case, but Miss Addams failed to arrive. Her message was sent from New York. Judge Lee said today that if Miss Addams did not come to Providence he would make plans to go to Chicago and conduct the search from there.

In response to a cable from the girl's father from Lucerne, Switzerland, asking Judge Lee to find his daughter, the latter cabled back, asking the father to offer a reward for information concerning her whereabouts. He is awaiting a reply to this message.

BELIEVE SHE RAN AWAY.

Henry W. DeKay, an uncle of the missing girl, on his arrival in Chicago to aid in the search, scouted the idea that she had committed suicide or was the victim of kidnaping, and declared his belief that Jeanne was a runaway.

The mysterious woman who is being sought in an effort to clear up the disappearance of Miss DeKay is Miss Didy Salter, an attractive Rumanian girl who was a friend of Miss DeKay on her journey from Italy to New York. Scarcely had the American heiress disappeared from Chicago when Miss Salter also disappeared in New York.

Belief was expressed today that the two were together.

COLVER DEFENDS PRICE FIXING OF WAR BOARD

Washington, Jan. 14.—William B. Colver, Federal trade commissioner, today defended before the House committee investigating expenditures in the War Department the working plans of the War Industries Board and of the Federal Trade Commission in the allocations to essenial industries of raw materials and contracts for supplies during the war period. Commissioner Colver was the liaison officer of the Federal Trade Commission during this period. He justified the price fixing work of the price fixing committee of the War Industries Board, saying it was necessary in fixing prices and authorizing contracts to reimburse for expenses of plant conversion to supply government needs.

SIMS WRITES DANIELS SCORING WAR POLICY

Washington, Jan. 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels stated today that he had received a long and critical letter from Admiral Sims relative to the policy of the Navy during the war. Dress Goods Shortage Uncovers More of Neck and Arms

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 14.—Milady's back and milady's neck and arms are going to be more visible this season than ever before.

Members of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, in convention here, declare the shortage in materials will make it necessary to conserve cloth to an extent that will make previous styles seem entirely conservative by contrast.

"Low in front, low in back and all the arm showing," is the manufacturers' slogan.

U.S. BURDENS BIG ENOUGH, SAYS ALEXANDER

Declares Taxpayers Should Not Be Forced to Carry Europe's Load

New York, Jan. 14.—American taxpayers must not be made to bear Europe's burden, declared Secretary of Commerce J. W. Alexander today, addressing the American Manufacturers' Export Association here.

"American taxpayers were at present suffering under a heavy load of taxation," said Secretary Alexander. "The government cannot add to the heavy burdens of taxation, thus far cheerfully borne, to give large assistance to other countries. Such assistance as the United States gives must be on a business basis. There will be certain demands for food relief which this country cannot ignore.

"If the peace treaty were ratified and the League of Nations in operation American investors would have greater confidence in putting their money into foreign securities. At a time when there is acute need in Europe for stabilization, political and economic, it is very unfortunate that the peace treaty should be made the subject of political debate in this country.

"The future of American industry and commerce is dependent upon more active participation in foreign countries than ever before. Whatever the views and the inclinations of various men in favor of keeping out of foreign affairs we must recognize that we are committed to foreign relations, both politically and economically, which we cannot to our profit escape."

Secretary Alexander urged continued development of the American merchant marine.

"There is no ground for thinking that the favorable position held by this country in the foreign field will receive any serious setback, provided a vigorous constructive policy looking to the maintenance and development of our shipments overseas, is followed," declared Secretary Alexander.

The question of loans to South America or far Eastern countries, which promise excellent markets for American manufacturers, hinges largely on the situation in Europe, the speaker said.

Investments in South America, in view of the world demand for capital, should be limited to basic industries, which would develop large sections of the country, Secretary Alexander said.

as the department head in a private corporation," who is judged solely by his efficiency. "There is no half-way point," he insisted.

The increases in salaries are expected to still the mutterings of discontent that have been heard throughout City Hall for several months past, although dissatisfaction was expressed at the $500 increase granted to officers of the police and fire departments. On behalf of the Mayor it was stated that these men have received no increase for some time, while an increase of $200 in the minimum salary was made at the time of the policemen's strike and this is followed with today's announcement of $200 increase in the maximum.

EMPLOYES AFFECTED.

Foremen, civil engineers, inspectors, clerks, on salary basis, who have received no increases during 1918-1919, not to exceed $300 a year.

Foremen, inspectors, civil engineers, clerks, on salary basis, who received any increase during 1918-1919, not to exceed $200 a year.

Mechanics, laborers, janitors, etc., an increase not to exceed fifty cents per day.

Library employes reasonable increases to be determined by the library trustees.

Resident employes in hospitals and other institutions who receive board in part payment, moderate increases.

Officers of police and fire departments, $500 per year.

For patrolmen receiving $1,500 and $1,600 per year, $200 increase per year, raising the maximum to $1,800 a year.

Engineers and privates in the fire department receiving $1,500 and $1,600, $200 increase per year, raising the maximum to $1,800 per year.

The Mayor urged the strictest economy by department heads in the preparation of the budget, but warned against false economy, saying the luxuries of yesterday are the necessities of today in municipal service. Service to the people should be their guidepost, he declared.

7,000 MADE HOMELESS BY FLOODS OF SEINE

Washington, Jan. 14. — Advices from France reaching the State Department say that the Seine flood which reached its maximum height on January 6, resulted in 7,000 being made homeless in the suburbs, threw 21,000 out of employment and caused other heavy economic losses.

The coal crisis was also aggravated by the interruption of traffic on the Seine during the progress of the flood.

FIND SOUTH END COUPLE UNCONSCIOUS FROM GAS

Mrs. John Joseph, aged twenty, and her husband, aged forty, of No. 17 Curve street, South End, were found in a room in their apartment early today in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from coal gas poisoning. The couple were rushed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance from the Lagrange Street station. The hospital authorities expect they will recover.

A Word on Circulation

By K. M. Goode

A publication can be edited to interest EVERYBODY; if this work is well done, THAT PUBLICATION GETS A GREAT CIRCULATION.

On the other hand—

A publication may be edited to interest ONLY a certain group of known and SIMILAR interests; if this work is well done, THAT PUBLICATION KEEPS A SMALL CIRCULATION.

But what, you ask, becomes of the publication edited to interest the public generally, which attains, nevertheless, only a small or medium-size circulation? Shall it be allowed to play both ends against the middle to argue quantity against its smaller competitor and quality against its larger?

The answer is fairly simple: If the publication in question has a big enough circulation, use it regardless of its claims as to quality; if it hasn't, don't.

Now, quite aside from the real "class" or trade publications, edited for well defined interests and professions, there are a few superlatively good small-scale publications that neither desire nor need a large circulation. Also there are certain miniature businesses that do not want and could not handle any really considerable volume of trade.

And nothing, certainly, could be more appropriate than these little businesses working genteely together in an atmosphere of exquisite exclusiveness.

BUT—

to expect an advertiser to build up any really GREAT business through media that offer "Quality" INSTEAD of Size, is like asking a swimmer to give an exhibition of fancy diving in an ordinary bath-tub.

IF THERE ISN'T ENOUGH WATER, IT MATTERS LITTLE HOW GOOD IT IS.

"A small college is an institution eagerly advertising its advantages as a small college in order to attract enough students to turn it into a big one."

Every manager of a store larger than a specialty shop is surprised at the way great buying power—for even the most expensive luxuries—keeps itself so widely distributed.

IT'S FAR BETTER, THEREFORE, TO RELY ON THE LAW OF AVERAGES, AMONG THE MANY, THAN ON THE FLICKERING FANCY OF THE FEW.

That is why the newspaper with a great circulation is such a marvelous advertising medium for any man who uses it rightly.

GOVERNMENT ACTS TO RID CITY OF VICE DENS

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 14.—While all New Hampshire hummed with excitement today over the revelation of the Federal probe in this city linking the name of Governor John H. Bartlett and his political followers with ownership in a resort of alleged questionable character, the government forces switched the limelight upon a further alliance between politics and alleged vice.

For years, it developed today, efforts have been made to place certain Portsmouth resorts under a supervision which would restrain the immorality which exists in them, according to the probers.

And as often as the forces seeking action upon the city dives made their advances, they met the wall of politics which stood between them and regulation.

Lieutenant Hannibal Hamlin, federal morale officer for this district, has filed an order with the City Council which provides that all places where food and refreshments are sold shall be licensed by the Board of Health and their employes regularly medically inspected.

Portsmouth's vice has centered in some of its restaurants for years. The government probe has established the fact that many of the eating places have been used largely for organized prostitution of the city. In the lower dives, women of questionable character are employed as waitresses. The dive owner is said to have collected half what was received by his help in this nefarious traffic. At other places "professional" waitresses used their positions as a means of meeting their intended victims.

The inspection of boarding houses and dance halls will be asked where it is charged immorality exists.

An American reporter visited one of the most famous of these dives. Its proprietor sat complacently watching the employes accept the rough familiarity of his customers. Its counterpart may be found anywhere where vice flourishes and yet it has run here, uninterrupted for years.

POLICE NOW GUARD HALL.

This place, and the "twilight" dance hall, owned in part by Governor Bartlett were made the first objects of investigation by the Federal probers.

Today five uniformed police stood guard over the Governor's dance hall.

Prior to today one floor man was all that interfered with the dancing. Now and then a couple were warned that they were dancing immodestly. But the government officials declare the place is a social menace. Townspeople have complained time and again about it; not only of its films, but that it is the only "twilight" dance hall conducted in New England, as far as the Federal investigators and complainants know.

The object in throwing the inspection of the restaurants in the hands of the Board of Health, it was stated today, was to remove the supervision of these places as far as possible from politics. The health board, it is said, is the least approachable body in the city by the political ring. Besides this the government will keep constant supervision of the places, and will take correctional steps at once if the authorities continue to allow the vice to continue or break loose at a later date.

A question the people of Portsmouth are asking is why the political ring killed the order to place the inspection and licensing of restaurants with the Board of Health. At present all these places are uninspected. Until federal investigators arrived, they were running as they chose.

The abnormal increase of men affected by vice in this district has at last exhausted the patience of the government, and its agnets are going to see that the laws are obeyed and that the politicians, whether Governor or Mayor or anyone else, will have to obey these first simple laws of decency.

The last clause of the Hamlin order reads: "If an employe be hired after the granting of a license, the manager, owner or proprietor hiring the said employe, shall furnish the board of health with the name of said employe within seven days after the employe begins work and every employe shall be examined physically whenever deemed necessary by the board of health."

This simple order to restrict and regulate the vice traffic in this city was flatly killed by the city council a year ago.

Two buildings in which restaurants are conducted are owned by Mayor Albert Hislop.

The government, it is believed, will insist upon police women being appointed. These inspectors will, it is said, have to be acceptable to the Federal authorities. The matrons will have general charge of dance halls and will seek local assistance in securing a film censorship, something which the city has never known.

The film business of Portsmouth is a close corporation. The Governor and his followers control it. They control every theatre in the place and their activities extend to other cities. How far they have been able to stifle competition in the State is a question. Here competition has been entirely eliminated.

BOARDING HOUSE "BLINDS."

In the Scenic Temple films are shown while dancing is in progress. This dance hall theatre is the habitat for many girls between the ages of seventeen and twenty. Every night the place is crowded. Government agents have followed the girls who frequent Governor Bartlett's dance hall. What they have found has led the Federal officials in a large degree to take the remedial measures they have instituted.

The boarding house menace, government investigators declare is fully as potent a factor for evil in Portsmouth as the other forms of dives within the city, and on its outskirts.

It is not the fault of the police of the city that the conditions have existed as they are today. On every hand praise exists for Portsmouth's police department. The police levying of graft which featured an administration in the past in this city, and uncovered another scandal of evil omen, is entirely abolished. If graft is paid by the dive keepers it goes to those "higher up" and the orders, if any have been given, have been to condone those who are most fortunate in conducting their enterprise.

Bartlett Sees 'Politics' in Vice Story, But Is Wrong About the Boston American

Concord, N. H., Jan. 14.—Governor John H. Bartlett today made the following statement regarding the Portsmouth vice revelations:

"It may be hardly worth while for me to pay any attention to a sensational writeup in the Boston American of alleged conditions in Portsmouth. There is no more reason for inserting my picture and name than there would be in bringing in the man in the moon, as he has no less to do with the active management of the theatres at Portsmouth than I.

"The fact is I own about one-tenth of the stock of the corporation which owns a chain of some twenty-five New England picture houses. I am one of ten directors and have no direct responsibility for anything connected with their operation.

"Another thing is that the houses are said to be well conducted. They are filled every day with the very best people of the city, the best possible compliment they could receive.

"The federal worker in Portsmouth is doing good work, and we are co-operating with him in every possible way to weed out undesirable people and acts, as I am told today by the management.

"I am in favor of a perfectly clean city in every way. I opposed booze, and every honest reformer has always found me working with him hand in hand. It was simply and purely a sensational yarn, perhaps with no sinister purpose or motive behind it, but I cannot help thinking that the Portsmouth correspondent of the Boston American is employed on the paper owned by my bitterest personal enemy, Major F. W. Hartford. Also that the article was timed to hit the constitutional convention gathering.

"A similar thing was done when I was running for Governor, and there has never been a word said between these two dates. Portsmouth is now a clean city, considering its situation, but I will join anyone to make it better. I am glad of this opportunity to say this much to our people."

Governor Bartlett is in error in ascribing the source of the American's expose of vice conditions to the American's regular correspondent in Portsmouth, who happens to be employed by Major F. W. Hartford.

The American sent a special staff man to Portsmouth, who secured the facts on the Portsmouth vice conditions from the army and navy officers sent there by the Federal government to clean up the immoral conditions existing there.

According to their report, vice conditions flourish in Portsmouth. Governor Bartlett's denial that he has much to do with the management of the offensive theatres does not seem to be borne out when it is remembered that he personally signs all passes to the theatres.

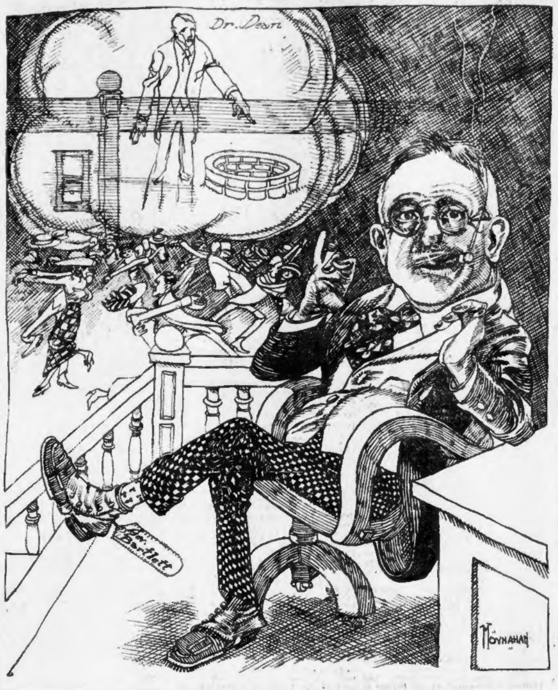
HE 'FIDDLES' WHILE DR. DEAN CALLS FOR VENGEANCE



U. S. MAY LEAVE SIBERIA'S FATE TO JAPAN

Believed to Agree That Mikado Has Right to Put Up Bars Against Bolshevism

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Secretary of State Lansing today stated that he was not yet ready to make public the note sent to Japan relative to the withdrawal of troops from Siberia.

Japan is expected here to greatly increase her forces in Siberia. This government will acquiesce by silence, recognizing the right of Japan to establish a barrier between the Bolsheviks and her own territory.

The withdrawal of American troops is now in progress and will be completed as soon as the Czecho-Slovaks have been withdrawn from Siberia. No troops will be left for guarding the trans-Siberian railroad and international control of the railroad will cease. It is expected that the control of this system will go to General Semenoff, who now appears to be in control of the situation.

MANSFIELD ASKS LABOR TO INCREASE PRODUCTION

Haverhill, Jan. 14.—Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston flayed the radical element in labor unions in the first of a series of forum meetings arranged by the Shoe Workers' Protective Union at the Academy of Music.

Joseph Goyette, the general agent, presided. The meeting was attended by 1400 shoe workers, while 600 more were turned away, unable to gain admittance.

Mr. Mansfield, in his address, urged the members of all labor unions to increase production as a solution of the high cost of living.

CRIPPLED SHIP TOWED INTO HAMPTON ROADS

New York, Jan. 14.—Her propeller smashed by heavy seas, the Cosmopolitan Liner Poughkeepsie is being towed into Hampton Roads by the Lamport and Holt ship Millais. The Poughkeepsie, according to an official of the Lamport and Holt line here, was adrift about 150 miles off Hampton Roads when she was picked up by the Millais.

RUNAWAY BOY, "BROKE," FOUND NEARLY FROZEN

Attleboro, Jan. 14.—James Moran, runaway youth from the Wrentham State School, has been returned to that institution by the local police. He had secured a position in a local factory, work there one day, and, not having money to secure a lodging place, had slept under the factory steps. He was discovered there, half-frozen, during the night.

Bostonians, a la Hip, and in Autos, Hurry 'Wet' Goods Away

For many hundreds of Bostonians this was moving day. Long lines of townsfolk and out-of-town folk wended palpitating ways through slippery streets and carried mysterious packages to secretive places. But yet Friday night, or more precisely Saturday morning at 12:01 a. m., is the official be-all and end-all for the wet and thirst-going, not to say the "medicinally inclined" population.

No great hurry indeed was necessary for the extensive shipments of various brands of drinkables, some of which traveled luxuriously in automobiles snugly rugged and carefully packed, but quite a considerable quantity of liquor today passed down the highways and byways of Boston a la hip.

Nothing like being in time and getting your hand on what your heart is set on. This today might have been the slogan of the wet, moving population. But then one has until midnight Friday to do one's moving, yet it's always better (say the same wet-moving population) to "come early to avoid the rush." A little ray of hope glimmers out on a horizon impendingly dry. It is a possibility—possibility big and WET.

"DRY" LAW MAY BE DELAYED.

It is the possibility that constitutional prohibition may not be put into effect until January 29. This is based on the technical question raised by Judge Louis D. Brandeis in his contention that the amendment should not become operative until one year from its formal proclamation by the Secretary of State. This would obviate operation of the eighteenth amendment on January 16, the date on which ratification was made by the State Legislature making the necessary quota.

But topers, tipplers and inebriates, as well as the old dear who keeps a little something in the cupboard "for medicinal purposes," have become seasoned to disappointment. It has been a hard, weary, uphill road for the liquor enthusiast. One hope after another has been crushed mercilessly. It is treading dangerous ground to hope the "open season" for a particular brand of indoor sports will last until January 29.

Arguments have ripened into such a pitch of dismal enthusiasm as to whether prohibition goes into effect Friday or Saturday that old-time friendships in many quarters have been placed in jeopardy in the past few days. The legal representatives of the Internal Revenue Department have come out definitely. And this is what they say:

"The 18th Constitutional Amendment does not become operative until after midnight on Friday. It is legal to transport liquor and to transport it into hotels and restaurants or the home on Friday evening."

With this valuable piece of enlightening information, a certain burden of doubt was lifted from the shoulders of a great many people who have a great deal to do in the waning—or weaning—hours of wetdom, and who didn't think they had a great deal of time to do it in. The official news from Washington and dispensed by the Internal Revenue agents stirred a great many Bostonians to action. In fact there was great activity on many fronts and liquid fire was used freely.

"UNLOADING" IS SADDENING.

The "unloading" process is a saddening one. For many it had that saddening atmosphere one feels only when leaving the childhood home. Many hotels began to "unload" today; many others have done it already. Other proprietors will keep their cellars intact until nearer to the unforgettable witching time of Friday night.

Cases of precious potions at varying prices today. One brand of world-famous whiskey sold at $90 a case. Cases of brandy sold for $100 to $120. This is a partial list (carefully compiled):

Whiskey (rye)	case	$90 to 125
Whiskey (bourbon)	case	100 to 130
Brandy (including best brands)	case	100
Benedictine (small quantities)	case	90 to 100
Cordials	case	70 to 100
Sherry (10-17 years old)	gallon	7 to 15
Port (10-17 years old)	gallon	7 to 15

Quarts of rye sold in some reliable places today at as low as $6. Special brands of Scotch fetched $8 to $10.

FIND WHISKEY AND POUR IT INTO SNOW

Fall River, Jan. 14.—United States officers John J. O'Hare and John H. Dolan, with Fall River and Somerset police officers, raided the home of Louis Garon in South Somerset and seized one of the most elaborate whiskey stills ever unearthed in these parts. They found fifty gallons of whiskey and this was poured on the snow, except for a few samples to be used as evidence against Garon. The still was of the double-action variety and consisted of a three-burner oil stove under a twenty-gallon tank. At each end of the tank was a worm and a coil running into glass jars.

BROCKTON BOYS HELD FOR PERJURY AND THEFT

Brockton, Jan. 14.—Charged with perjury, Samuel Stone, 18, of No. 41 Summer street and Leon Smolensky, 19, of No. 53 Summer street, appeared in the city police court today. They waived examination and were held in $1,000 for the February term of the grand jury. The charges against the boys grew from Stone's arrest for alleged larceny. It was claimed that he presented a 15-cent check at a local lunchroom, after having enjoyed an 80-cent meal. Stone and Smolensky testified that another person had paid the 80-cent check.

BABY SLAVERY DISCLOSED IN EVERETT

"Mystery Woman" Kidnaps Child, Showing Underground Traffic in Infants

The kidnaping of an eight-months-old baby boy who was being boarded in the home of Mrs. William Underwood of Everett, by a "mystery woman," who gave a false name, has brought to light a widespread "underground" traffic in baby slavery, in which babies are stolen for commercial purposes by agents who sell them to wealthy couples.

The facts became known when Mrs. Underwood appealed to the Boston American to aid her in finding the lost child, and the inquiry led to the Department of State Minor Wards at the State House. A prominent official of that department verified the facts in the case brought to the American's notice and stated that the traffic in stolen babies was known to the State authorities. Most of the little victims, "handled" by an organized gang, are babies born out of wedlock or of poor parents. They are sold to the highest bidders, usually rich married couples who do not care to report their purchase to the State authorities.

The case which has bared to the public a knowledge of the "baby slave" traffic presents many curious features. The strange woman in question went to Mrs. Underwood's home, No. 82 Everett street, Everett, in response to a news item which said that the baby was available for adoption. She gave her name as Mrs. Eulalia Hagan, saying that she was the proprietor of the Henry E. Hagan Company, No. 505 Washington street, Boston, with a residence at No. 18 Victoria street, Dorchester.

Mr. Hagan is a Boston city councilor.

Later inquiry at the Hagan home and place of business brought a statement from that family that they knew nothing of the circumstances and were unable to identify the mysterious visitor.

"She wanted to take the baby on a week's trial," Mrs. Underwood told the American today. "She came first on Saturday night, January 3, but I wouldn't let her have the baby until the mother had given her consent. The baby's mother is a hard working girl, who earns hardly enough to support herself. Her reason for being willing to part with the child is that she is unable to support it properly, and wants it to have a good home.

"I communicated with the mother and both she and the woman came to my home the next day, Sunday. The woman calling herself Mrs. Hagan brought with her a large traveling bag containing some beautiful baby clothes. She wanted it to be dressed better than we could dress it, and told us that she had previously adopted a baby which died.

NEVER SUSPECTED WOMAN.

"She took the little one away with her, and said she would keep us informed how he got along. That was the last we saw or heard of her. Perhaps I should have told you of the circumstances sooner, but I had no reason to suspect this woman or doubt her story. The name she gave was so prominent that I was satisfied, never dreaming that she had given a false name. She was well dressed and nice appearing, and seemed eager to give the little boy a good home.

"After a week had gone by, I telephoned to the Hagan store and then to the house in Dorchester, only to find out that they had never seen the baby and knew nothing about the case. I know that the Boston American has found lost people before, and so thought that perhaps your paper could help me find this child.

"I am greatly worried over him, for I loved him dearly, and fret for fear he is not being well cared for. I hated to let him go, in fact, for I was greatly attached to him and longed to keep him myself, but have several children of my own, and cannot afford to keep him without compensation. The mother was paying me four dollars a week for his board and that was really more than she could afford, for she is hardly earning more than ten dollars a week.

"The baby will be nine months old on January 25, and is fat and healthy, a beautiful child."

Mrs. Underwood described the woman who took the child away as follows: About thirty or thirty-five years old, five feet, eight inches tall, rather stout, medium complexion, brown hair and blue eyes, nice teeth, unusually small, with a gold tooth at the left of the front. She wore a black velvet hat encircled by a white ostrich plume, a long coat of brownish mixed cloth, with a collar that crossed in front, buttoning on each side and in the middle. She had a nervous habit when talking of rolling up her eyes from time to time, so that the whites showed prominently.

Bryan Confident of Treaty Ratification in a Few Days

By International News Service.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—William Jennings Bryan arrived in Chicago today en route to Washington, and made the confident assertion that the peace treaty would be ratified by Congress within a few days. He did not state why the Senate would take such early action other than to suggest that it was because the people wanted action.

"The sentiment of the people everywhere," he said, "is overwhelmingly in favor of immediate action. They are interested in action rather than phraseology.

"The telegram I sent to various senatorial friends did not call for answers. They called for action, and I believe they will get that response. Most people differ regarding the wording of the treaty, but everyone wants action."

BRITISH GIRLS COME TO WED SOLDIERS

Liner Winifredian, Bringing the Young Women, Is Held Up for Four Hours

Fifty cabin passengers on the Leyland liner Winifredian, including three British brides-to-be for American ex-service men, eager to set foot on solid ground after a long and tedius voyage, were held up for four hours just outside the pier at East Boston today.

The British steamship Mobile, formerly the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, was occupying the opposite half of the dock, and with the strong tide and wind that were running, Captain Trant would not attempt to slip the liner alongside. The Winifredian accordingly dropped anchor off the head of the dock about 9 a. m., and passengers cooled their heels while relatives and friends at the pier waited impatiently to greet them.

The Winifredian sailed from Liverpool, but instead of coming direct to Boston, went to Havre, where she took on 2,200 Chinese and a few Canadian officers, all of whom she disembarked at Halifax.

The brides-to-be are Elsie Armstrong, twenty-five, an Irish colleen from Wexford, who is to marry John A. Campbell of No. 38 Partridge street, West Roxbury, former attache of the navy seaplane station at Wexford; Mabel Cluniss, twenty-two, of Liverpool, the fiancee of Arthur H. Marsden of Hebron, Ind., whom she met while he was driving a motor lorry in England, and Hilda G. M. Cooper of Weybridge, Surrey, bride-to-be of A. Fyffe, No. 162 West End boulevard, Detroit, who served in the ammunition works at Surrey.

William Reedy of Arcadia, Tex., was another passenger on his way home. Mr. Reedy returns from Burmah, where he went with his son after having lost all his property in the floods that devastated Galveston a few years ago. In Burmah the Reedys developed oil lands, and the father, now sixty-eight, having retrieved all his losses, is returning in the belief that he will find oil on his Texas property.

Rev. Albert A. Ashton, with his wife and four children, arrived on their way to visit relatives in the middle west. Rev. Mr. Ashton has spent twenty years as missionary in India and four years in England as a seamen's chaplain.

SEEKS $15,000 FOR LOSS OF SIGHT IN 'PEACE' SPREE

New York, Jan. 14.—The premature armistice celebration of November 7, 1918, cost Frederick N. Birch the sight of one eye and permanent injury to his other eye and today he brought suit for $15,000 damages against James B. Regan, president of the Knickerbocker Hotel Corporation, alleging that responsibility for his injuries, which he declared were sustained while he was a guest in the Knickerbocker restaurant, rested with the management.

Birch was dining quietly, according to his complaint, when others in the room became "so enthusiastic over the news and other stimulants" as to become "unduly celebrant, hilarious and disorderly." In the midst of the celebration a girl stood up and whirled a "rattler" about her head. Something flew from the "rattler," striking Birch's eye and destroying its sight. The other optic became sympathetically affected.

PEABODY TOLD IT MUST PAY TO KEEP CARS

First-Class Service Requires Money, Says Governor, in Fight Over Jitneys

Governor Coolidge said today in a letter to the Peabody Chamber of Commerce that if the people want to have first-class trolley service they have got to pay first-class rates for it. He said he has asked the trustees of the Bay State to restore trolley service in Peabody and Salem, and they have agreed to do the best they can. He said that is as far as he can go.

Peabody and Salem transportation was cut down substantially by the public trustees because of jitney competition. They appealed to the Governor. He said to them in his letter today:

"Your favor of January 14 is received. I shall be glad to do all I can to assist the citizens of your city in securing adequate service on the street railway. You are no doubt aware that I have no jurisdiction over the action of the trustees. The only thing I can do is to ask them to do all in their power to render service. That I did some days ago in response to the representations of a committee from Salem and Peabody. I understood that they had arranged to furnish Peabody with transportation.

MUST HAVE REVENUE.

"This whole question is a matter of securing enough revenue to furnish service. The public must understand, as I have said before, that what the public has the public must pay for. It might be a convenience to have several kinds of transportation and there will be no difficulty in having all the transportation the public is willing to pay for. It may have to make a choice, if it can pay for but one of two kinds, what that kind shall be.

"I should not wish to be put in a position of urging the trustees of anyone else to render service to the public for which they could not get a return sufficient to pay for the service. I have no doubt you have all these things in mind and I have asked the trustees to do everything in their power. They claim they are doing so.

"Our street railway transportation is in a most difficult situation. We shall need all the patience and forebearance we can secure in order to keep it in operation.

NOT WILLING TO PAY.

"I have urged upon the Legislature the desirability of relief, appointed a special commission and have even called a special session, but it has been very difficult to secure action which would provide for the payment for service.

"The desire on the part of many has ben for service, but they have not been willing to provide means by which the expense could be met. As business men you know that this is an impossible situation.

"I therefore hope that you will co-operate with the trustees to assist them in finding means to pay for operation. I understand they feel that the people of Peabody have extended to them such help as they could and that they have every desire to take care of the people of your city."

REAL ESTATE MEN PRAISE MAYOR'S STAND ON TAXES

The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, through its president, William S. Felton, made public the following resolution today: "The Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange warmly commends the action of Mayor Peters in appointing a committee to consider new sources of city revenue and possible methods of economy in the administration of the municipality. We believe that the Mayor is entirely right in his statement that real estate in the city of Boston is already bearing the maximum of taxation."

ROB GARAGE OF $5,000 WORTH OF WHISKEY

Baltimore, Jan. 14.—Hold-up men who must have acquired a well-nigh unquenchable thirst, "stuck up" a watchman in a garage, compelling him to face the wall while members of the band loaded more than $5,000 worth of whiskey on trucks and departed. Then the men with the guns vanished.

SOMERVILLE MAN DIES A SUICIDE

Walter Parsons, formerly a real estate dealer, of No. 175 School street, Somerville, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He has been despondent since his wife died last September.

ASPIRIN

Introduced by "Bayer" to Physicians in 1900

You want genuine Aspirin—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. The name "Bayer" means the true, world-famous Aspirin, proved safe by millions of people.

Each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis and for Pain generally.

Always say "Bayer" when buying Aspirin. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on the tablets.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger packages.

FLAWS IN DEAN PROBE EXPOSED BY DUNCAN'S LETTER TO PICKARD

East Jaffrey, N. H., Jan. 14.—Former Postmaster George H. Duncan, one of the ablest and most public-spirited citizens of this town, has written a letter to County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard in which he bluntly states that he is dissatisfied with the way Pickard and Attorney-General Oscar L. Young conducted the Grand Jury inquiry into the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean last April.

One of the most significant features of Mr. Duncan's attack is the fact that he is related to Pickard, but Mr. Duncan in common with the majority of tax-payers of Jaffrey, is too interested in the attempt to have the slaying of Dr. Dean avenged to be blinded by kinship.

SENTINEL "MISLEADING."

He brands as "misleading," the article recently published in the Keene Evening Sentinel, which maliciously attempted to place responsibility for the murder on the widow of Dr. Dean, who died recently. He says he is anxious for a second Grand Jury investigation of the case. The letter follows:

"My dear Roy:

"Tonight for the first time, I had an opportunity to read the article in last week's Sentinel, pertaining to the Dean case. I don't know whether this article is inspired by you or not, but I must say that to my mind, it lacks much of being frank, particularly in its reference to Mrs. Dean. Perhaps I do not fully understand the situation in regard to her, and if I do not, your answer to a couple of questions will clear my mind.

"1 What was the report of the East Gardner experts who had her under observation as to the probabilities of her committing the murder?

"2 What was the opinion of Dr. Chase after three months' observation on the same point?

"Perhaps I ought to add another question—3—Did Mrs. Dean ever show any sign, or let fall any word (outside of those relating to Dr. Dean's being 'out there in the deep water,' which I have told you before it could be proved she had used in connection with him at times previous to the murder), showing that she had knowledge of his death?

DEFENDS MRS. DEAN.

"Now to save correspondence, I am going to assume that your answer to these questions is—to the first two, 'That she was apparently incapable of performing the deed, and to the third, 'No'; and if these are not your answers my contentions, to a great extent, must fall to the ground.

"Assuming your answer to be as I have stated, it seems to me that the Sentinel article was entirely misleading in referring to her examinations without stating the conclusions arrived at.

"And further, that under the circumstances, any reference to Mrs. Dean as the insane perpetrator of this crime is entirely unwarranted, and far more deserving of criticism than any acts of the local selectmen, which were characterized by the Sentinel as tending toward Red propaganda.

"And as to that, it seems to me that it is going pretty far to call any sober criticism of public officials by that name. The New Hampshire constitution says:

"'All power being derived from the people, all the officers and magistrates of governments are their servants and agents, and, at all times accountable to them.'

"It would do us all good to read that document once in a while.

"The Sentinel articles also brought out another instance of the lamentable lack of co-operation between the various officials interested in solving the Dean case. Some time ago there appeared in the Boston papers articles regarding the statements of Mrs. Bertha Lang, a medium, who professed to have received a revelation relating to this case, and who stated that she had been visited by a representative of the New Hampshire authorities.

HUSHED MEDIUM STORY.

"At one time I asked the Selectmen if they knew about this, and they said they knew nothing except what was in the paper. Three weeks ago last Saturday, the Selectmen being in Boston on another matter, had some spare time, and decided to go and see Mrs. Lang to see if by chance she had any worth while information on the matter.

"She had nothing except Spiritualistic chatter, but she did tell them that two men, who did not give their names or whom in New Hampshire they represented, had previously called on her to learn what she knew, after she had written the Jaffrey chief of police.

"Upon their return the Selectmen questioned the chief about the matter, and he said that he had received such a letter, which he had turned over to you, but he told them nothing further. Several days later the Selectmen learned by chance from one of the men who had called on Mrs. Lang the story of how the chief had suggested to him and another man that they should make this visit; that they had reported to the chief and he had sent the material to you.

"All this time the Selectmen had placed no credence in Mrs. Lang's story, had taken no steps to look her up except to find out who was interested in her story, and were never told by any one until long afterwards just what had transpired. Now the Sentinel comes out with its statement claiming that the Selectmen are relying upon such evidence in their demands for further action.

"The Sentinel further states that you are ready at all times to co-operate in clearing up this matter. Is it evidence of co-operation on your part that you are, through the Sentinel, for how else could the paper have gained this information save through you, holding these men up to ridicule without finding out whether the statements thus made are true or not?

"Now while I am writing, I want to express myself as a citizen as to how the Grand Jury investigation last Spring appealed to me. Of course I don't know anything about it except from outside, and I know little about legal points. But for a good many years I have been studying and thinking about men, trying to find out how people think and act and how they can be appealed to.

"I have served on one Grand Jury. I have been a witness in and watched many jury trials, I have acted as justice in police court in several hundred cases and I have watched five Legislatures, two constitutional conventions and studied the doings of many other similar bodies.

"It appears to me that before I could undertake adequately to present such a case as this to a jury, I must have determined upon some hypothesis. I must have weighed the possibilities and settled on the most probable.

DISAPPOINTED IN PROBE.

"1—Mrs. Dean did the deed. Could she have done it? That is for the experts to say. If they say she could, I would find what corroborative evidence there was. Having been persuaded in my own mind that she did it, I would present the evidence to the jury in such a way as to bear out my theory and see if it appealed to them in the same way. If they agreed with me, the case is settled, because she was clearly irresponsible.

"2—If Mrs. Dean was adjudged incapable of the deed by the experts, who next? The last man who saw him alive, who appeared the next morning with a black eye, whose story as to his doing on the night of the murder has been contradicted by responsible witnesses. (I omitted to state that if Mrs. Dean were indicted it would relieve all others from unjust suspicion.) But if I could find no motive for Mr.—— (Mr. Duncan named the man) doing the deed, his past good reputation would go far to offset in my mind the evidence pointing in his direction, which is strong enough to have warranted the arrest of anyone of poorer reputation.

"3—Who next? Who was there so closely associated with Dr. Dean as to enable him to get information 'too dangerous for a woman to know,' as he told Mrs. Morison, information which should go to the Federal authorities?

"Here is a motive for his death, and if we can find any evidence pointing toward the one from which Dr. Dean gained this dangerous information, our third possible theory gains a foothold, to be enlarged by digging out bits of corroborated evidence from every possible source.

"Now I want to tell you frankly that I was greatly disappointed, as a citizen, at the way Attorney-General Young and you conducted the hearing. It was very evident to anyone who knew in what order the witnesses were being called, that neither you nor he had arrived at any working hypothesis, at any plausible theory of the murder which was satisfactory to yourselves.

WOULD REMOVE SUSPICION.

"General Young now states that he did not expect to get any indictment. How could you expect one if you had no idea in your minds who did it and didn't present what little evidence there was in such a way as to make a continuity of thought in the minds of the jurors?

"You know as well as I do that no body of men can sit for days listening to evidence from forty or so witnesses and have any idea at the end what the witnesses have said, unless the case has been presented with some sort of plan. When you are conducting a case in court, do you call your witnesses haphazard or do you present a sequence of events in such a way as to try to bring some conclusion to the minds of the jury?

"Another thing. I understand that you were furnished by the Federal investigators with a quantity of statements they had secured from various witnesses. Were you able to digest those statements sufficiently before presenting the case to the Grand Jury so that you are absolutely sure in your own mind that you missed no salient or bearing point which the Federal men had uncovered?

"Such thoughts as these are making me and other citizens anxious for another Grand Jury hearing. If I were convinced that my doubts are groundless, I might feel differently. But neither I, nor hundreds of other people can rest easy while suspicion is being directed against Mrs. Dean by Keene people, and against Mr. —— by others.

"And if Keene people, even after the Grand Jury hearing, are still insinuating against Mrs. Dean, why should not others suspect Mr. ——? And we can't be satisfied to have the case dropped while General Young is saying that he doesn't, personally, believe there was anything in the spy theory, when dozens of responsible citizens are willing and have taken oath to having seen them?

"I am emboldened to write this letter because in a previous letter to me you said, 'You need not adopt any air of apology by saying that "our citizens may be going out of their province in asking questions.' So I have no doubt you will reply to this as freely and frankly as you did to the previous letter. Yours very truly. (Signed)

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR NELSON MACHINE COMPANY

Judge George Bingham of the Federal Court has appointed Hion C. Pierce of Taunton receiver for the Nelson Machine Company of Taunton. Mr. Pierce qualified in a bond of $15,000. The York County Trust Company of York, Me., which claimed to be a creditor to the extent of $10,000, brought action. According to the petition the Nelson Machine Company owes $160,000.

CHELSEA SCHOOLS ARE BECOMING OVERCROWDED

The school committee of Chelsea voted to recommend to the Board of Aldermen that an addition to the Chelsea High School is necessary, and a general discussion of the condition of the Cary School followed. They declared that the school was overcrowded and in an unsanitary condition.

112 TAKEN IN RED RAIDS APPLY FOR FREEDOM

One hundred and twelve alleged "Reds" who were taken in the government's dragnet a week ago have petitioned for their release from Deer Island through Attorney Thomas G. Connolly, who has filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, which asks that Commissioner of Immigration Henry J. Skeffington show cause why they should not be released.

Among those seeking release is Frank Mack of Hartwell street, Dorchester, who is said to be the New England organizer of the Communist party. Mr. and Mrs. William T. Colyer of Wellesley, whose names also appear on the petition, are also seeking their release from Deer Island. Colyer is said to be an officer of the Communist party in this city, while his wife is said to have been in charge of the Communist party Sunday school at No. 885 Washington street, this city.

The Boston American's NATIONAL SHOE RETAILERS' ASSOCIATION Supplement

9TH ANNUAL CONVENTION
Mechanics Building, Boston
JANUARY 12, 13, 14 and 15
1920

BUSINESS FORUM PART OF CONVENTION SESSION

Retail shoe dealers from all parts of the United States gathered in Convention Hall at the Mechanics Building today to consider the problems of the trade. Proprietors of shops on Fifth avenue, New York, as well as others from Lexington, Mo., found that many of their difficulties were the same regardless of locality.

An open forum was conducted throughout the day except for the time given to a report of H. E. Hagan, chairman of the election commission. A reception to the State president was set for 4 p. m.

Shoe men attending the convention today declared that the style show of Tuesday night was one of the most elaborate presentations of footwear ever given. Standing space in the hall was at a premium long before it began.

Ninety pretty girls, each wearing a different model of Spring footwear, with costumes to match, were on the runways all the time of the exhibit. From the long runway through the centre of Convention Hall radiated many shorter ones.

A ballet of colors arranged by the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Lynn brought much praise from the visitors.

There was also great interest in the living models of widely-known shoe advertisements, translated to flesh and blood.

Bostonians contributed largely to the success of the "Standard Kid Revue," the closing number of the style show. It was a playlet in six acts, for which Herman Mahr of Boston wrote the music and Frederick Mahr, his brother, the lyrics. Lowell S. Norris and Miss Louise Potter, both well known in local theatricals, staged the piece. Special scenery was brought from the studio of Martin Jenter at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and was his design. Miss Mildred Haley of the New England Conservatory played the leading role of Miss Standard Kid.

Styles from the time of the Puritan girl to those of the present day were presented. Other Boston young women who played parts in the revue were: Miss Ethel Howard as the Pilgrim Girl, Miss Marie Gowd as the Auto Girl, Miss Mary Donovan as the Matinee Girl, Miss Marie Jenkins as the Florida Girl, Miss Louise Brooks as the Skating Girl and Miss Pauline Folger as "An Actress."

A number of association hits were introduced in the specialty "You Know What I Mean." Miss Pauline Folger and Margaret Norton contributed solo dance numbers.

HIGH SHOE PRICE BOOM FOR COBBLER

Latest Machinery Able to Repair Several Hundred Pairs a Day

Since the price of shoes started upward in 1914, the number of shoes brought to the cobbler has tripled. This is the consensus of opinion of the larger shoe repairers of Boston.

People who never before thought of having their shoes repaired are taking their run-down shoes to the repairer and having them resoled and the uppers patched, and bringing them back a second time and a third time. Many pairs of shoes stored in attics have been taken out to be repaired, and incidentally these old shoes very often are made of better leather than most of those sold today.

The managing director of the United Shoe Repairing Machinery Company disclosed some pertinent points in this connection.

"More than double the number of shoes are being repaired today than before the war," he said. "Of course this is because people realize it is much cheaper to mend shoes than to buy new ones, and also that the higher the price of shoes goes the greater the economy in having them repaired.

"Competition has kept the price of repairing down. Women are less prone to have their shoes mended. They regard shoes somewhat as they do hats, adequate only as long as they are in style.

"The most economical method of repairing shoes is the whole sole and and heel. By this method the shoe is made almost as good as new, and though it is not quite so popular as the tap or half sole, it is winning more people in its favor all the time.

"The demand for skilled cobblers today is greater than the supply, and if it were not for improved machinery the work could not be done. While the average hand man would not be able to do more than four or five pairs of shoes a day, with the latest machinery several hundred pairs can be mended in ten hours."

TINY GLASS BEADS ADORN LATEST PUMP

An attractive array of low effects in women's footwear which can be seen on the Boulevard de St. Mihiel is that of the Emery & Marshall Co., of Haverhill. A complete assortment of high and low shoes of all kinds is on exhibition, but, commanding special attention, is a style of pump which is unique because of the very artistic way in which tiny glass beads have been arranged on the vamp.

HAND-MADE SHOES ARE FROM $30 TO $50 A PAIR

Hand-made shoes, the work of one man, and which retail at from $35 to $50 a pair, are on display at the shoe convention. They were made by an expert in the customs department of J. & J. Slater, New York.

There are five pairs of these shoes on exhibition. One pair has a forepart of red pebble kid—the leather having been in Mr. Slater's possession more than ten years.

LEVOR DISPLAY OF CABRETTA IS MAGNET

Coloring, Durability and Style of Ladies' Shoes Attracts Many; Low Cost Is Aim

Conspicuous among the many showings of footwear at the shoe convention designed to reduce the cost of shoes by enlarging the supply of raw material is that of G. Levor & Co. of Gloversville, N. Y.

When the present demand for the so-called "millinery" shoe sprang up this concern immediately trebled its production of Cabretta leather in order to keep down as much as possible the ever mounting, but justifiable cost of high grade ladies' colored shoes.

Many changes of tanning processes, requiring the services of the best tanners in the world, were necessary to produce the colors demanded by fashion. This Cabretta leather, being shown by its originators, G. Levor and Company, is not an imitation of any other leather; it is in a category by itself.

It makes economy possible without losing the all important features of durability and style, and the success with which it has met, as evidenced by its increasing popularity, is only what every product which serves to reduce living costs deserves. The display attracts unusual attention.

DEALERS FROM FAR AWAY LAND AT CONVENTION

Among the shoe dealers registered at Mechanics Hall this week are W. Lipworth of Johannesburg, South Africa, and James H. Patterson of Scotland.

Each has been in America in connection with the shoe business and came to the convention to inspect the exhibits.

300 WOMEN ARE VISITORS TO CONVENTION

Plenty of Entertainment Being Provided for Them, Ending in Banquet Tomorrow

More than three hundred women have registered as visitors to the shoe convention.

Today the women visitors were taken for a motor trip to Harvard University, historical points about Cambridge and a tour of the North Shore. Luncheon was served at the factories of the United States Rubber Company and tea at the factory of the United States Machinery Company at Beverly. Tonight there will be a whist party for the women in the Swiss room of the Copley-Plaza.

Tuesday they were taken for a tour of Boston's shopping district which began with a breakfast at 11 a. m. in Filene's restaurant. The Jordan Marsh Company entertained the visitors later in the day with a reception and tea in their assembly hall. A musical program was given.

Tomorrow the women will be taken on a motor trip about the city. A banquet will be given for them tomorrow night at the Copley-Plaza followed by a ball.

SHOE FACTORY FIRE RUMOR IS DENIED

A rumor that the plant of the Holters Shoe Company at Cincinnati had been destroyed by fire which gained considerable currency among visitors to the National Shoe Retailers' Convention was vigorously denied by Frank X. O'Brien, vice president of the company at the Copley-Plaza, where he is stopping during the convention.

Mr. O'Brien appeared much incensed by the report and said it was wholly unfounded.

AMERICAN SHOE FACTORIES ARE SPEEDING UP

The North American continent is the only section of the world adequately supplied with leather shoes of the various types of leather in demand, according to Laird H. Simons of Philadelphia, who spoke before the shoe convention on "Kid Leather Supply and Prices."

American tanneries are producing more leather than at any time in their history, he said, and the output of the shoe factories is more nearly normal than at any time during the last three years. But the great demand for glazed kid has forced prices to three and five times their pre-war level. Tanners in all parts of the world are striving to meet the demand.

LITTLE TANNING IN 1914.

"The tanning of goat skins in the United States in July, 1914, was at the low ebb of about 9,000 dozens per day," he declared.

"In the late Fall of 1916, this daily production was about 18,000 dozens per day, and the world was being scoured for supplies of the finest grades of goatskins to meet the demand which was insatiable, both for the American and foreign markets.

"This world demand in the Fall of 1916 rapidly drove the price of raw goatskins—and necessarily leather—upwards, until in January, 1917, the price was between two and three times normal.

"The year 1917 proved to be a nightmare for the American glazed kid tanner, when one after another of the European countries who had been great buyers in the American market were either shut out through the refusal of letters of assurance for shipments or through embargoes.

PRICES TAKE DROP.

"The American market became hesitant and panicky, and prices in the Spring and Summer of 1917 dropped to less than twice normal. The advantage of this hesitancy in the American market, however, was lost to the American consumer, for it was taken advantage of to supply a need existing in England.

"Shortage of supply restored confidence, buying was resumed and the market again continued its upward course.

"February 1, 1917, marked the opening of the unrestricted ruthless submarine sinkings on the high seas, made the shipping situation for the importation of raw material grow steadily worse, culminating in the embargo by our own government in June, 1918, on the importation of all raw hides and skins not needed for military purposes.

"Fortunately, this order had been preceded—but by only a few weeks—by the placing of maximum prices for the sale of hides and skins, or a completely demoralized and runaway market would undoubtedly have ensued.

EMBARGO AFFECTED MARKET.

"All things considered, this embargo of June, 1918, while absolutely justified and necessary to win the war, explains, in a large measure, the market situation one year ago and much that has followed.

"Tanneries closed down or greatly curtailed their outputs for want of leather raw stock; shoe manufacturers used all of their reserves and even then could not keep their depleted forces at work, and probably the supply of shoes in the hands of retailers was lower per capital from January 1 to July 1, 1919, than ever before.

"The importations of raw goatskins in 1918 and until March 1, 1919, were the lowest in amount since tanning has been a great industry in the United States.

"With the signing of the armistice in November, 1918, and the partial and then final withdrawal of the embargo in the closing weeks of the year, and the removal of maximum prices, tanners again began to scour the world for raw material with which to resume business.

IMPORTS DECREASE.

"Inquiries and orders from American shoe manufacturers and from the world flooded our market. March, 1919, marked the rising tide of the flow of raw material to our shores, rising to unprecedented figures in the late Summer.

"Adding together the receipts in 1918 and 1919 of raw material—in spite of the small number in 1918—these receipts will probably equal the receipts of 1916 and 1917 combined, which was the previous high-water mark.

"Tanners have exerted themselves to the utmost to increase production and place this leather on the market with as short delay as possible. The daily production has been unprecedented for the past six months (July to January), probably averaging in the neighborhood of 24,000 dozen skins per day."

Slipper Cloth Tops Coming Back

Latest Addition Gives Woman of Average Income Chance to Have Footwear to Match the Dress of Every Occasion.

New creation of boot tops, said to be much superior to the gaiter, now being shown at the Retail Shoe Dealers' Style Show.

The separate cloth top for slippers which mother wore when a girl is coming back in vogue this Spring, according to style experts at the shoe convention. Only mother never had any as fine as those being shown now, it is claimed.

The boot top differs from the spat, in that it has more buttons and conforms closely to the lines of the foot. When worn it gives a close resemblance to a cloth top shoe. A strap of the material weds it to the sole.

By having these tops in varying shades the well-dressed woman of average income is able to have footwear to match the dress of every occasion, the manufacturers said. For street wear the coming season fawn color is expected to be the most popular.

Baby's Shoes Costly; New Ones Come at $7.50 a Pair

"Baby needs new shoes," is a common prayer at games of chance when the devotees wish to make an especially urgent appeal to fortune, but Daddy will have to hold more "naturals," or the stakes be higher when he wins, if his offspring is to be properly shod, for the prices are higher. Baby shoes have advanced 15 per cent. in the last three months, according to exhibitors of those articles at the shoe convention.

Satin is used largely in the manufacture of baby's shoes and increases in the prices of that material is blamed by the shoe manufacturers for the big advance in infants' footwear.

New samples of the shoes on exhibit will retail from $1.75 to $7.50 a pair, the exhibitors say. Hand embroidered and gold leaf shoes for baby are among those shown.

MEXICAN DEFAULTER SHOT WITHOUT TRIAL

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 14.—Word has reached here that Aturo Alvarez, a former fiscal agent of the Carranza government, who disappeared a few months ago with $15,000 and who was later captured in the State of Sinaloa, was shot to death Sunday night by his Federal captors.

They were en route to Hermasillo where Alvarez was to be tried.

WOMEN WILL WEAR WIDER SHOE LACES

Mr. Titus of the United Lace and Braid Manufacturing Company of Providence, who are displaying a full line of their laces and rubber heels on the balcony, makes a rather pertinent prediction regarding the styles in laces for ladies' low shoes for the coming Summer.

Laces from three quarters to one inch wide will predominate, he says, in both mercerized cotton and silk. Fancy hues will be avoided and, instead, the laces will run to blacks, different shades of brown and white.

STATE GUARDSMAN ADMITS $15 HOLDUP

Samuel Benninghove, a private in the 11th Regiment of the State Guard, pleaded guilty in Dedham District Court today to assault with a dangerous weapon and robbery. He was held in $5,000 for the Grand Jury. Benninghove admitted that on January 4 he held up Herman Ufheil, manager of a gasoline station, and forced him to give up $15. He was arrested by Chief of Police James J. Shine of Dedham, Chief of Police Fred M. Mitchell of Newton and Inspectors Edward O'Halloran and John Shaughnessy. He gave his address as Boston Union Hall, No. 48 Boylston street.

MAKES ATTACK ON 'FAIR PRICE' BOARDS

Speaker at Convention Says Indictments of Shoe Men Are Unjust

An attack on so-called "fair-price commisisons" was made today by A. H. Geuting, presiding officer of the day at the meeting of the National Shoe Retailers' Association convention in Mechanics Building.

"In making indictments of merchants for alleged profiteering," said Chairman Geuting, "fair price commissions are very often urged to such action by incompetent women who are not familiar with the subject; by fanatical speechmakers; by opportunists; and sometimes by politicians seeking office.

"Every indictment of shoe men so far has been unjust. I will say that there is not a single profiteer among shoe men in the United States today. It is impossible to have profiteerig in the shoe business.

DENOUNCES LEVER ACT.

"Agitators usually take some isolated item, such as a button, and show that there is a 300 per cent. profit on it. But they fail to mention the other items on which there is only a profit of 6 or 7 per cent. On that basis of indicting, reliable business men all over the country would be indicted.

"The number of men who would be sent to jail on that basis would be so large that the jails would not be large enough to hold them all. To gain their ends these reformers employ such laws as the Lever Act." Mr. Geuting denounced the Lever Act.

URGES CASH BUSINESS.

F. E. Ballou of Providence urged retail dealers to keep the size of their stock down, so that when recession comes they will be prepared to meet it. "By all means establish a sinking fund," he said, "if you hope to withstand elimination. In these days people have a liking for bargains. The store that gives them is the one that will get the business. I had rather sell twenty pairs of shoes at $2 the pair than ten pairs at $3. So had you, thus reducing the cost of doing business and increasing its volume."

Mr. Ballou spoke in favor of doing business on an exclusive cash basis. He said "there is no credit house that can compete with a strictly cash business. I have always believed that charge customers should pay more, or cash customers less. If you can gain new customers and yet retain the majority of old ones, the volume of your trade should increase by one-third in the coming year. Our volume has steadily increased since we began to do business on a cash basis.

"There is a cash grocery in Providence, which did ten millions in business last year, increasing by three and a half-millions. They have now opened branches in Woonsocket and Pawtucket.

"I am pleased with the cash system as it affects my own business, and I never plan for a minute to go back to the old regime. If any of you are thinking of installing a cash system, now is the time, with soaring prices. You won't regret the move."

ACCUSE WESTERN UNION MAN OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Charged with embezzlement of $800 from the United States government, William S. Richardson of Cushing street, Hull, was today held in $1,000 for a continued hearing on January 29 by United States Commissioner Hayes. Bail was furnished by the defendant's father. Richardson, who was an official of the Western Union office at Hingham, it is alleged, committed the thefts between July 1, 1918, and August 31, 1919, by means of false vouchers. This is the first case of its kind prosecuted in this district, although about a year ago an operator was arrested here on a similar charge for Nevada authorities.

COLD WAVE DUE TO HIT BOSTON TONIGHT

A cold wave of two or three days' duration is due to hit New England tonight, according to Weatherman Smith. The temperature, however, is not expected to go below 10 above zero. Fair weather prevailed throughout most of the country today. Snow fell in scattered sections of the Middle States and near the Canadian-New England border. The official forecast for Boston says: "Fair and colder tonight. Thursday, continued cold. Strong northwest winds."

MEDFORD MAN ENDS HIS LIFE BY HANGING

Edward Pearce, twenty-two, son of Mrs. Isabel Pearce of Boston avenue, Medford, committed suicide today by hanging himself with a clothesline from a closet door in his bedroom. Pearce had been despondent, due to overstudy, and it is believed that he took his life during a fit of temporary insanity. Pearce was discovered by his mother. She cut his body down and summoned a doctor, but the boy had been dead for more than an hour.

CANADIAN PAPER FIRM IS TO BE PUNISHED

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 14.—Criminal proceedings have been started by the government against the Fort Frances Paper Company, which shipped newsprint paper to the United States in defiance of the government ban. The government ordered papers in Western Canada supplied with newsprint paper, but when steps were taken to secure it from the Fort Frances company it was found the whole stock had been shipped to the United States.

$100,000,000 IS PROFIT OF U.S. SHIP BOARD

Rapid Expansion Carrying American Vessels Into Every Port in World

By International News Service.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—The American merchant marine will show a profit of approximately $100,000 a ship for the year 1919, according to preliminary reports in the hands of shipping board officials today and estimates of receipts by the treasury.

The gross receipts of the shipping board for the year 1919 are estimated at approximately $1,000,000,000 and of this sum it is expected that a clear profit of approximately $100,000,000 will be shown. Officials of the shipping board stated today that the average earnings per ship will be about $100,000, although one ship last year netted a profit of $100,000 during a five months cruise through the Orient.

There are now about 1,400 vessels in America's merchant marine fleet, although all of these ships were not in active operation during the entire year of 1919. New ships are being delivered at the rate of about fifty per month.

The American merchant marine is now active on the forty-one trade routes used by world commerce and shipping board officials declared today there is not a seaport where the American flag is not known. Hundreds of ships flying the American flag are now seen on trade routes and in seaports where they have never been seen before.

The merchant marine promises to become one of the great industries of the United States. There are approximately 350,000 men now working in the shipyards of the country, whereas in the days before the war shipyard employes seldom numbered more than 50,000. The present building program of the shipping board will be nearly complete with the end of 1920, when it is expected that there will be a fleet of 2,200 vessels flying the American flag.

FIND DRUG ON REVERE COAT THIEF SUSPECT

Harry Meyers, twenty-nine, said by the police to be a member of a gang which has been stealing fur coats from school dressing rooms, was arraigned in Chelsea court today and held in $2,500 bonds for a further hearing. The police say he stole a fur coat from the Revere High School yesterday, the property of Miss Eleanor Carter, a pupil. When searched two hypodermic needles and a quantity of drug was found in his pockets.

GREY TO REPORT U.S. ATTITUDE ON PEACE

London, Jan. 14.—Viscount Gray, British ambassador to the United States, who arrived in London from Washington yesterday, announced that he would confer this afternoon with Lord Reading, the Lord Chief Justice, and go to Paris tomorrow to make a report to Premier Lloyd George. Viscount Grey will outline in detail the attitude of the United States on various peace matters. It is expected that important decisions on allied policy will result from the conference.

TAXICAB BREAKS LEG OF SOMERVILE MAN

Stanhope T. Nelley, aged fifty-eight, of No. 25 Willoughby street, Somerville, was struck by a taxicab while crossing Federal street and sustained a fracture of the right leg. He was taken to the Relief Hospital for treatment.

According to the police the machine was operated by Harry L. Siegal of Deering street, Mattapan.

Plus Business for Every Shoe Retailer in the United States

25,000,000 public school children under compulsory gymnastic training! 50,000,000 boys and girls, young men and young women, between the ages of 5 and 24, being transformed into players of indoor and outdoor games! 110,000,000 Americans being converted into lovers of outdoor life—a whole nation being educated to enjoy each year seasons of sport and recreation.

THIS is the rapidly expanding market for just a few of the many types of fabric rubber soled footwear.

Consumer demand is becoming so general and the variety of types of shoes needed so great that the most careful attention must be given to finding the means of meeting the conditions of the market.

A few so-called tennis shoes stored carelessly where convenience dictates and where customers do not see them—this is no longer sound business policy.

Progressive retail shoe dealers are finding a large volume of plus business by stocking a line of fabric rubber soled shoes, complete enough to meet every need and varied enough to suggest new uses and new comforts in fabric shoes.

The United States Rubber Company has kept pace with the needs of the rapidly expanding market. New types, new styles, improvements in manufacture, increased facilities for production—these have been its policy.

A new achievement in manufacture has just made possible the perfection of a welt sole for canvas rubber soled shoes.

These welt soles, the firmly boxed toes and fashionable lasts of the Regent models have added to our Keds line a new shoe of style and distinction—already assured of wide popularity and opening up a still wider field for the line.

Keds have now become a most complete line of superior fabric rubber soled shoes, ranging from the easy, less formal tennis shoe at $1.50 a pair retail, to the latest and most fashionable styles of foowear at retail prices up to $6.50 a pair.

The extensive national advertising campaign planned for the coming season will make more popular everywhere the many types and styles and is sure to make the new year the greatest year in the demand for Keds.

WE extend greetings to the National Shoe Retailers' Association and its members and wish to assure them of our efforts to secure maximum production in all lines which is consistent with the maintenance of the quality of our merchandise.

$130,000,000 IN LEATHER "UPPERS" EXPORTED IN YEAR

Approximately $130,000,000 worth of leather uppers for shoes was exported from the United States during the first eleven months of last year, Harry I. Thayer, president of the New England Shoe & Leather Association, said in an address at the shoe convention. This was more than four and a half times the value of these leathers exported during the same period of 1918.

In shoes, the exports were $68,000,000 for the first eleven months in 1919. For that period of 1918 they amounted to $29,000,000.

"These figures do not include sole leather, glove leather or strap leather," Mr. Thayer explained, "and are almost astounding in their size. They reflect the tremendous production American tanneries are capable of yielding."

OUTPUT EXCEEDS DEMAND.

"I believe that they demonstrate the fact that, while the prices of raw materials and all other costs that make up the price of a pair of shoes, whether they be high or low, that the production of our tanneries is far beyond the consumption of America's own market. Surely the retailers will never need to worry about the production of leather to make shoes, provided the raw material is forthcoming to make the leather. It is with, I believe, a 60 to 70 production only that these enormous figures have been accomplished.

"Of course, there were large stocks of certain lines of upper leathers in the market, or in the hands of the tanners, one year ago this time, but no such great amount of leather as these figures reveal. The total production, whatever it has been with what stock was in the tanner's hands one year ago, made it possible to ship $130,000,000 worth of fine upper leather abroad and also take care of the domestic consumption here in America.

"Is it not a wonder that prices did not go even higher than they did with this extreme demand and may I add that I do not believe the requirements of the world have received but a small percentage comparatively of what is really needed.

"We have had a relief from our raw material supplies to help counteract this tremendous demand for leather and shoes, for there has been a very large exportation of boots and shoes, relatively as large a percentage of increase as in leather. The relief that our world market has given us in raw material, in hides and skins, for the first eleven months of 1919, has been approximately $230,000,000 while for the first eleven months of 1918 the figures were approximately $80,000,000.

"This shows an increase in exports of leather and an increase of $150,000,000 imported in hides and skins. The figures on the importation in hides and skines include sole leather hides, while the export figures of leather are for upper leather only. We have also consumed our own domestic supply of hides, which today is comparatively smaller than a year ago.

"The supplies of leather are comparatively low as demand has fallen off; supplies have also fallen off, and it is upon these facts I have based my opinion, that with the amount of raw material so reduced and the stocks of leather kept close to the demand or rather in close ratio with the demand, that the prices of leather for 1920 will be relatively higher than at the present moment.

"Some of the leading industries in our country have been forced to make prices based on the time when deliveries were made. If our leather had kept advancing as it was during August, 1919, these conditions would have come to the leather industry. It would not surprise me in the least to see such a condition during the months of May and June of the present year.

INDUSTRY SOUND.

"We must not underestimate these conditions. They are fundamentally sound as far as conditions reflect and we must not belittle our industry by thinking that the relative value of leather, hides and skins, will be any less than the relative values of any other great commodity in our country.

"I do not believe in making sensational statements regarding the conditions of the leather market because many would disagree with what I said and great wrong might be done the industry unintentionally but I do believe that our industry is on a sound basis so far as values are concerned, and that we should not expect to buy shoes or leather proportionately cheaper than we would buy cotton, woolen goods or any other staple commodity.

"In fact if you will give the matter a little thought you ought to know that the supply of raw materials of cotton, of steel, or flour is largely produced in America, and for that reason we will never have a control of the raw material supply in hides that we do on nearly all other lines. We should not expect that we, along with the markets of the world, shall buy cheaper here than anywhere else.

"If we are able to buy at the same price and prohibit the importation of leather or prevent foreign competition in shoes or leather we shall accomplish something which I do not believe is possible, because we are so many thousands of miles away from the sources of the raw materials for leather, and we are under a serious handicap with the transportation problem, freight rates, etc., which now exist, and which will naturally have to be made up or added into the cost of production; a thing which I trust we can accomplish.

"These ideas are expressed only to emphasize that in this country with the great consuming power of the people so enormously increased, we cannot expect to have production or prices as before the war. It is with confidence that I hope the retail shoe dealers of America will feel a sense of stability facing them as far as their markets of raw materials are concerned for the year 1920. It seems to me they are upon a solid basis with a probably higher price rather than a lower one facing them in the near future.

"I have a conviction that the decreased producing power, shortage of supplies, aggravated by the shortage in production is bound to maintain a continued active business for a number of years. Nothing but a calamity can prevent it, and while there are conditions in the world far from what we would like to have them I have faith in the American people, faith that three great problems will be handled properly, and that adjustment will not come upon us in a night but will be [illegible] carefully handled until we become settled upon a new and better basis than ever before."

HERE ARE "BUSTER BROWN" AND THAT FAMOUS DOG

In a few days "Buster" and "Tige" will appear where all the little folks can see them. Now they are at the convention of shoe men.

'BUSTER BROWN' AND 'TIGE' ARE IN BOSTON

Buster Brown (himself) and his inseparable companion, Tige, is at the National Shoe Retailers' Convention at Mechanics Building just inside the main entrance on Boulevard Chateau Thierry.

Fortunately for the exhibitors and the visiting shoe men, he isn't nearly so mischievous as he is when he appears in the comic cartoons or the convention would end in a riot. To all appearances he confines himself to meeting old friends among the visiting shoemen and introducing them to one another, but you never can tell what is going to occur the next minute when he is around. It is well to keep your eye on him all the time when you can, and when you can't—well, you'll have to trust to luck, that's all.

He personifies the Buster Brown shoe, the shoe for boys and girls made by the Brown Shoe Company of St. Louis, and has travelled all over the United States in the same role—meeting many thousands of boys and girls. He promises to be at Filene's for a few days in the near future. The children of Boston can have an opportunity of seeing and meeting him.

PRETTY GIRL MODEL WITH STOUGHTON FIRM

One of the living modles at the convention who attracts much attention is a pretty girl displaying fashionable shoes made by the [illegible] Brothers Shoe Company, of Stoughton.

This company is a firm believer in [illegible] and short vamps and many who pause to inspect the fotwear of the model comment favorably on it.

COMMITTEE OF 48 COMES TO BOSTON

The committee of forty-eight, organized as a national body for the purpose of uniting all liberal forces in the United States into a possible future political party, has established headquarters at No. 6 Beacon street, Room 325, with Howard Rees Williams, vice-chairman of the national committee, in charge.

At a meeting held yesterday at Hotel Bellevue, Mr. Williams outlines plans which the committee of forty-eight is now perfecting for New England, including a vigorous campaign of publicity, speaking and a drive for membership.

On February 2 a New England conference will be held in Boston for the purpose of districting the States into congressional units.

Mr. Williams made it plain that no definite political party could be launched until the national convention the latter part of June. In speaking of the program as outlined by the national committee the vice-chairman said:

"It is our purpose to use every credited means for rousing interest in New England. We shall provide speakers for forums, use all possible publicity channels, and challenge to joint debate representatives from the Republican and Democratic parties."

The first regular meeting of the New England committee will be held Monday evening to elect officials and apportion the work.

Too Many Shoes in Belgium--May Send Some Back

Belgium has such a large stock of imported shoes that she may be compelled to re-export part of them, according to a writer in the "Foreign Trade Review" of the New York Post.

The retail prices of the footwear imported from the United States, Switzerland, Spain, France and Holland are so high that the Belgian public has been slow in making purchases. In spite of the size of the stocks on hand there seems to be little promise of price reductions, he says.

SHOE DEALERS WIN BETTERMENT PRIZES

Murray C. French, a shoe dealer of Lincoln, Neb., who is attending the national convention, will take back to Lincoln a check for $1,000, the first prize in a contest conducted by the Standard Kid Manufacturing Company of Wilmington, Del. The contest was for the best suggestion on improving the service of that concern, and the prize winners were announced at the convention.

Claude A. Derr of Worcester won the second prize of $500, and William J. Walsh of South Boston the third, $200. Fourth prize of $50 was awarded to J. C. Smith of Wellington, Kan. There were 75 other prizes of $10 each.

Byron C. Earle Is Sixty-Five

Lexington, Jan. 14.—Byron Clarence Earle, for nearly twelve years collector of taxes for this town, today observed the sixty-fifth anniversary of his birth. Mr. Earle was born in Thetford, Vt. He was descended from John Earle, who came from England and was one of the six Squires who were the founders of Providence, R. I.

ANGELES' AIDES FREED BY COURT

Federal Justice Holds Findings of Court-Martial Unconstitutional in Both Cases

Washington, Jan. 14.—Two men, arrested at the same time as was General Felipe Angeles, rebel leader and co-partner of Villa, and tried with him at Chihuahua by a military court-martial, have been ordered released from custody by the Federal court at Juarez.

The Federal court held that the findings of the court-martial were unconstitutional, according to advices received here today. Its decision, however, came far too late to be of any value to General Angeles. He was convicted and sentenced to be executed and the sentence was carried out almost immediately by a Carranzista firing squad. Angeles was reputed to be one of the foremost military men in Mexico.

The striking feature of the proceedings before the Federal Court was that the defendants, Major Nestor Enciso De Arce and Antonio Trillo, were at first given the same penalty as Angeles, death. Later Arce was given twenty years and Trillo, a mere lad, was sentenced to six years and eight months.

Through the efforts of their counsel a writ of empora was obtained and Judge Zubia ordered the case dropped. He declared that the sentence passed by the Military Court was unconstitutional and in contravention to the Federal statutes of the republic. He thereupon ordered the release of the prisoners.

The Correct Dodge

WE will be one of the exhibitors at the Retailers' Convention to be held in Mechanics Building, January 12, 13, 14 and 15, 1920.

Mrs. Margaret McCusker, who is known as the lady with the perfect foot, will be in attendance at our Booth, No. 106, Boulevard de St. Mihiel.

We cordially invite you to inspect our samples and have Mrs. McCusker demonstrate the perfect fitting qualities of the Correct Dodge.

We want you to consider this a personal invitation from the

GIRL'S LEG IS BROKEN IN COASTING CRASH

New Bedford, Jan. 14.—Miss Mildred S. Bates, a student at the Wareham High School, sustained a double fracture of her right leg above the ankle when the sled on which she was coasting with several other young people on Hammond's Hill, Onset, crashed into a telegraph pole at the side of the road.

Charles Swift, who was steering the sled, was severely cut and bruised.

At the Opera

In New York

you can see beautiful women, handsomely attired, with flashing jewels and of charming personality.

At the Metropolitan Opera House may be seen the latest fashions in everything, especially in coiffures—for the New York woman is distinguished for her hair and the style in which it is arranged.

You Just Try NR For That Indigestion

Get your organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination working in harmony and watch your trouble disappear. NR does it or money back.

One Day's Test P oves NR Best

The stomach only partly digests the food we eat. The process is finished in the intestines where the food is mixed with bile from the liver.

It must be plain to any sensible person who realizes this, that the stomach, liver and bowels must work in harmony if digestive troubles are to be avoided or overcome.

This fact also explains why sufferers from indigestion, also suffer more or less from headaches, biliousness and constipation.

If you are one of the many unfortunate persons who cannot eat without suffering afterward, if you are constipated, have bilious spells, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, variable appetite, are nervous, losing energy and feel your health slipping away, take this advice and get a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) right today and start taking it.

Give it a trial for a week or two and just see how much better you feel. See how quickly your sluggish bowels will become as regular as clock work, how your coated tongue clears up and your good, old-time appetite returns. See how splendidly your food will digest and how your energy, "pep" and "ginger" revive. Just try it.

You take no risk whatever for Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is only 25c a box, enough to last twenty-five days, and it must help and benefit you to your entire satisfaction, or money returned.

Five million boxes are used every year—one million NR Tablets are taken by ailing people every day—that's the best proof of its merits. Nature's Remedy is the best and safest thing you can take for biliousness, constipation, indigestion and similar complaints. It is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

EBERT DEMANDS FAIR PLAY FOR GERMANY

Issues "Peace Day" Statement Urging Halt on Discrimination and Distrust

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch.

Berlin, Jan. 14.—Friedrich Ebert, President of the Republic of Germany in an exclusive signed statement for Universal Service, gave me today his views on the historic occasion of the treaty of Versailles coming into force. In it he appealed to the press of the world to cease discrimination, distrust, suspicion and hostility and to help instead to make the world safe for enduring peace. Here is his statement:

"With all my heart I welcome the final advent of peace so long expected and so long delayed. Though it is not a peace upon the terms by which just two years ago almost to the day President Wilson set the hearts of enlightened men and women everywhere ablaze, it is, nevertheless, at least a formal cessation of the state of war which will help men of good will on both sides and which may turn into real world peace in the course of time.

PERIOD OF REGENERATION.

"In this sense, this day ought to be the dawn of a period of regeneration and the return of sanity for a world disorganized and demoralized through the long orgy of destruction and lawlessness. It ought to be a solemn reminder that organized murder must never happen again, and that insofar as the present peace settlement fails to satisfy the just claims of nations, it must be revised by other means than the destruction of human lives, and with other arguments than guns and battleships.

"It will be a matter of the deepest regret for many people that the state of peace proclaimed does not include either the United States or Russia. I sincerely hope that the day when those countries also will reenter into peaceful relations with Germany, and as far as Russia is concerned with the rest of the world, may be near at hand.

NOT DOWNHEARTED.

"After the cataclysm through which the world has gone, the new international conditions cannot possibly be fixed to a nicety beforehand. It seems, therefore, wise and in the present state of threatening dissolution almost indispensable, first to re-establish a state of peace throughout the world and leave the arrangements of the details of international relations to common council at a later date.

"To Germany the coming into force of the peace treaty brings us material advantage and the long desired return of thousands of sons held unduly long in foreign captivity. For her this day means the setting into motion of an endless chain of obligations of the heaviest kind, including the unspeakable painful surrender of large areas, inhabited purely or preponderantly by German populations, to foreign sovereignties.

"We refuse to be downhearted. In resuming diplomatic and commercial relations with our former enemies we hope that they will give a chance to the new Germany whose present government, supported by the vast majority of the people, has no desire but to live in peace with the rest of the world.

"I trust that in this desire we may be aided by the responsible press organizations in the various countries. The world knows how much in the past erroneous, and even deliberately false newspaper reports have intensified the existing rivalries and actual hostility.

"I see that even now false reports of an alleged desire of Germany for commercial world supremacy are being circulated among an uninformed public in order to keep up suspicion and distrust against Germany.

"I, therefore, beg leave to appeal to the responsible newspaper men in all countries to leave the war of journalism aside and do their part to make this world safe for peace, good will, and co-operation."

LLOYD GEORGE SUCCUMBS TO JAZZ TUNES

French Capital Amazed at Premier's Ability to "Trip the Light Fantastic"

Paris, Jan. 14.—Paris salons, society and diplomatic circles are buzzing with the news that Premier Lloyd George has fallen victim to the jazz dance craze.

The Hotel Claridge, where the British Prime Minister is stopping, was the scene of his capitulation to the frivolous goddess, Terpsichore. Returning from an official dinner on the evening preceding the exchange of ratification ceremonies, the Premier was struck by the brilliancy of the luxurious hotel ballroom, where the pick of Parisian society was earnestly shimmying to the strains of the highest paid jazz orchestra in the world.

"Loungers heard him remark to his companion, Bonar Law:

"This reminds me of the good old days; I don't believe I can resist the appeal of that music."

Whereupon the two statesmen shouldered their way to a table close up to the orchestra, and ordered sandwiches and wine. A moment later Lloyd George "copped" a noted Paris beauty, a member of the diplomatic set.

"My dance, I hope," whispered the Premier into the flattered belle's ear.

The orchestra struck up the strains of a lively dance, and the distinguished couple gayly proceeded across the gleaming parquet, and, to the utter astonishment of the whole gathering, danced from start to finish, Lloyd George enthusiastically clapping his hands for an "encore" when the dance ended.

The spectators were amazed at the easy grace with which Britain's foremost statesman continued dancing throughout the evening, and the facility with which he picked some of the latest terpsichorean stunts. Foxtrot, schottische and "hesitation" manifestly were his favorites. He did not attempt to "do" the tago or shimmy, but was heard to remark, as he passed out:

"I don't see why they all denounce the shimmy. It looks like great sport to me. I wish I knew it. I must learn it if ever I get the time."

Recluse Found in Old Barn Loses Foot by Freezing

Davis was found by Agent Edward F. Gorman of the Woburn Board of Health and Charities, living in a vacant barn on Church street, during the frigid spell of last week.

The only means of heating the place was a small oil heater. Two old horse blankets were used by the man for covering. Agent Gorman had Davis removed to the City Farm, where it was found that his right foot had been frozen. Davis formerly worked about farms in Woburn and Burlington for many years.

SUGAR SHORTAGE MAKES CRANBERRY MARKET BAD

New Bedford, Jan. 14.—Unless the scarcity of sugar is relieved by next month Cape Cod cranberry farmers will suffer heavy losses, according to James T. Hennessy of Wareham, president of the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers' Association.

The farmers still have about 15,000 barrels of late berries for which there is no demand.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS AT HOULTON, ME., STATION

Houlton, Me., Jan. 14.—Fire early today at the Bangor & Aroostook station destroyed one passenger coach and badly damaged another. The loss is placed at $10,000. For a time it was feared the roundhouse would be destroyed.

MEXICO JOINS U. S. IN WAR ON 'REDS'

Immigration Agents Ordered to Prevent Socialists Crossing the Rio Grande

By International News Service.

City of Mexico, Jan. 14.—Mexico has joined the United States in a crusade against Bolshevik agents, according to government officials today. It was declared at the Ministry of Justice that official data would show that Mexico already has deported nearly two score Maximalists. Most of them were arrested at Tampico or in the adjacent oil fields.

The principal propagandists were George Rouskelly and William Wasti, who were arrested two weeks ago by Carranzista troops. Government officials said today that both already have been deported and are on their way to Europe.

At the Ministry of the Interior it was said that immigration agents at the border and at all Mexican ports have been instructed not to allow Socialists to enter the country. Communists propaganda was started some time ago in the State of Yucatan, but government restrictions were imposed and it was declared that it has almost ceased.

FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE TO GET CAMPAIGN CLOCK

"Watching the clock hands" will be a feature of the Franklin Square House $140,000 campaign. Plans had been made for placing of a large clock in the foyer of the building with the long hand indicating the daily total of funds raised and the short hand the progress Franklin Square House girls themselves make. Seventeen members of the Boston Y. W. C. A. Blue Triangle squad were guests at the weekly dance and entertainment last night. Miss Olivia James and a group of the Sewing Circle girls took tea at the House today.

Policewoman Reports a Busy Year in Haverhill

Haverhill, Jan. 14.—Haverhill's policewoman, Mrs. Mary J. Hawkins, has filed her annual report with City Marshal Alden M. Worcester, which shows a total of 86 women arrested during the year. Mrs. Hawkins attended Saturday night dances, visited theatres 59 times and sent home many girls under 17 from both places.

She caught 37 persons in the act of stealing goods in downtown stores and has returned goods to stores and homes in 26 instances. Through her work she has been able to effect reconciliation in 31 families.

She investigated 47 complaints of persons living together, who were not married, and 11 of these couples were subsequently married. Mrs. Hawkins personally arrested 4 women during the year.

$10,000 FIRE TIES UP GAS WORKS AT NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, Jan. 14.—As a result of a serious fire in the engine room at the gas works of the New Bedford Gas and Edison Electric Light Company, part of this city and all of Fairhaven and other surrounding towns are without gas for household and illuminating purposes. It is expected, however, that relief will be forthcoming within a week. Mystery surrounds the origin of the blaze, which destroyed a large part of the plant and resulted in damage of about $10,000.

HAVERHILL SOLDIER WINS FRENCH BRIDE

Haverhill, Jan. 14.—Aurele J. Duchemin has gone to New York to bring to his home, No. 10 Le Blanc street, his French war bride. Duchemin carries papers from his parish priest to the immigration authorities. He hopes to have a nuptial ceremony celebrated in St. Joseph's Church, of which he is an attendant.

It was while in France that Duchemin met a petite French girl, Gilberte Majune. He was serving in the Massachusetts Coast Artillery.

MORE CHARMS LAID BARE BY NEW STYLES

Mme. Frances Says Paris Dresses for Spring Have Decidedly Indecent Cut

By MME. FRANCES,
Noted New York Fashion Expert.

Paris, Jan. 14.—American fashion designers have nothing to learn from the French. After a month in Paris, viewing the latest creations of the Rue de la Paix and frequenting the fashionable resorts of the smart set here, I have decided it is time that the myth about beauty of dress being exclusively controlled by the French were exploded.

New York's Fifth avenue can and does produce smarter and more artistic frocks than anything that can be seen in France this season. If extremes were the criterion of good feminine garb, Paris could, of course, retain the palm this year as it always has in the past.

CORSAGES INDECENTLY LOW.

Extremely high skirts and indecently low corsages—which in some instances are, indeed, conspicuous by their entire absence—characterize the 1920 madness of the French style arbiters. A sensational display of wide expanses of bare flesh is the watchword of the year's fashions.

It is unquestionable that the majority of American women of good taste would blush to be seen in this semi-demi type of apparel now offered in fashionable French salons as the height of smartness. As a matter of fact, the better class of sober French society women already are reacting against this craze for scanty attire and are clamoring for a return of longer skirts and higher corsage.

MAKEUP A FINE ART.

Although the American dress designers no longer need French tutelage in their profession, the fashionable women of America still have much to learn from their Latin sisters in the matter of making the most of their charms.

The average Frenchwoman has a genius for appearing to her very best advantage. She is scrupulously careful in the minutest details of her toilette. Frenchwomen have reduced facial make-up to a fine art and a subtlety still foreign to American women.

A Frenchwoman would scorn to appear at the breakfast table without being "made-up." Thus, this Parisienne, by invariably dressing in keeping with the time of day, is never caught napping, is always appropriately garbed on whatever occasion might suddenly arise.

ADDS TO SOCIAL LIFE.

It is this trait of the Frenchwoman which adds so much to the eclat of the social life here in Paris, where the harmony at brilliant foregatherings is never marred by the ubiquitous "Mrs. Malaprop," who is a frequent bane to American functions.

If American women copied their French sisters in this respect they would outshine them as greatly as the sun outshines the moon, for they are indisputably more beautiful and more gracious and more brilliant.

It is their very dependence upon their surpassing natural charm which puts them at a disadvantage with the French beauties, who do not scorn to overlook the slightest detail of the subtle art of dress in order to appear at their utmost best.

LITTLE GIRL COASTER RUN DOWN BY AUTO

SEEK HOME FOR NURSES OF TUBERCULAR PATIENTS

Lawrence, Jan. 14.—A move has been started here for the erection of a home for the nurses of the Lawrence Tuberculosis Hospital. A committee conferred with Mayor William P. White regarding the erection of the new structure.

It is feared that the city's financial condition will not withstand the expenditure of the entire amount, and it is probable that the money required will be raised by popular subscription.

At the present time the nurses are in danger of contagion as they are compelled to sleep near the consumptive patients.

WIFE OF ALLEGED "RED" REFUSED AID

Lawrence, Jan. 14.—The wife of one of the alleged "Reds" taken here in the raid, applied for aid at the city hall office of overseers of the poor. She said that she had two babies to support and wanted some money.

The clerk told her that she was capable of working and refused to aid her. The wife of the prisoner at Deer Island is accused of having sworn at the officials.

Representatives of the Federal government are now in Lawrence for the purpose of rendering aid to the families of imprisoned radicals.

From the filmiest to the most mannish sport blouse

Every one flaunts gay color

PURPLE, turquoise, blue, rose, radiant coral—there's not a smart magazine that doesn't flash color from every page. Sport blouses, demure blouses, shimmery, sheer, dressed-up ones and those for plain work-a-day, all are set on being sprightly.

The shops can't make or get fast enough, the joyous colors you've been reading about and want. It's sometimes months and months after you first hear of a new shade before you see it in the shops.

But now there's a wonderful new way to get just the smart turquoise you want for that festive little voile, the delicate yellow that your sad white crêpe de Chine's been sighing for.

You can wash them any blithe, new color you want.

This new product just washes color in

Really and truly just wash it — with Twink. Twink comes in the merriest, gayest little flakes. They whip into a brilliant lather, you pop your blouse into the shining suds, swish it about for a few minutes and all in a twinkling it gets its lovely new hue. And the precious blue georgette the sun had faded, the yellow voile that was too pale, all are Twinked back to their first freshness.

Really smart colors and they turn out right

Twink comes in the season's most fashionable shades, selected with the help of the country's authorities on color, and they turn out right every time, with never a streaky or dingy look. And so fast are these colors that you can wash your blouse several times in Lux before it comes back for its next Twinking.

In all these smart colors

Today get two or three boxes of Twink in the colors you've been reading about and wanting. Twink won't harm anything pure water alone will not harm. The department stores, your druggist, the five and ten cent stores all have Twink. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass. (Makers of Lux.)

RAP REPUBLICAN MOVE TO BLOCK ROLLCALLS

Fitzgerald, Ward 5, Denounces Scheme to Conceal Voting Record of State Solons

An alleged attempt by Republican House leaders to tighten up the rules which now permit of rollcalls—the only way left to the people to find out how their representatives are serving them—was today denounced by the Democratic leaders as "a step toward the old autocracy of Russia, which was overthrown by revolution and the autocracy of Germany, which was overthrown by war."

The scheme of the G. O. P. leaders, according to the [illegible] of protestations of the minority members, is to require the assent of forty members of the House before a rollcall can be secured on legislation. Only thirty are now required to stand for a rollcall.

COMMITTEE FAVORS, IS REPORT

Representative John I. Fitzgerald of Boston today asserted that Representative William H. McDonnell of South Boston, the Democratic House leader, is authority for the statement that the Republican maneuverists have already voted in the Rules Committee in favor of this reactionary change. McDonnell is a member of the Rules Committee. He was quoted by Fitzgerald as saying that he voted against the proposition in the Committee.

Representative B. Loring Young of Weston, the Republican "whip," denied that a favorable vote had been taken on the scheme but he admitted that "the matter is under consideration."

Only those familiar with legislation will realize the danger of such a change. Many a rollcall has been secured by the bare margin of thirty-one votes and many a valuable piece of legislation has been saved from defeat because members of the House, not daring to face their constituents with a record of their betrayal, voted for a bill in public which they would have voted against in secret. In the same way, dangerous, reactionary, special legislation has been defeated.

IS ONLY RECORD.

The first vote on a bill is called the "voice vote." The members merely say "aye" or "no" in unison. If any member doubts the result of that vote, he may ask for a "standing" vote. The members stand and are counted. The rollcall is the last and final vote. It is the only one in which the name of each member is called and in which he answers "yes" or "no" as his name is read in public. The record of each member's vote is printed in the House journals on the rollcall and on no other.

The term "whispering legislation to death" arose in past years because of the Senate custom of refusing to grant rollcalls. Members have been cautioned and warned by the leaders not to stand up when a request for a rollcall was made.

"We will fight this to a finish," said Representative Fitzgerald. "Speaker Warner, Representative Young and any other Republican leader who has political ambition will sign his own political death warrant if the Rules Committee tries to put that rule through the House.

FAVORED BY CORPORATIONS.

"The present rule has existed from time immemorial. It has never changed. The membership of the House hasn't changed. This scheme of making rollcalls harder to secure was always favored by the corporations, by the lobbyists and by those who had some dark, secret, and [illegible] interest in legislation. It has been defeated by the votes of independent members of the House.

"It will be used this year as an excuse for a short session. No session is too long to do the public's business right. If rollcalls make for honesty, decency and loyalty to the public interest the independent members of the House will not begrudge the time that they take.

"America has just won a war for democracy. Boys were shot down and mothers saddened. The public servant who attempts to conceal himself and his actions from the people is one of our most insidious enemies of democracy."

Here is a New and Modern Double-Purpose Laxative

Costs No More Than Ordinary Old-Fashioned Preparations

From childhood up we have been accustomed to associating a laxative with bitter "messes" out of medicine bottles, strong and gripping purgatives and nauseating oils. All of these served only to force the organs into action and did not cause them to act naturally and normally. Furthermore, they exerted nothing but a forced laxative action on the digestive tract.

To provide a laxative which would be pleasant to eat, would be mild and soothing in its action, would cause the internal organs to act naturally and normally and, in addition to all this, exert an antiseptic action on the digestive tract tending to drive out the millions of disease germs which accumulate there and help to render the intestinal tract antiseptic, Partola—"The Doctor in Candy Form"—was invented.

Go to your druggist today and secure a package of these delicious, palatable and tasty peppermint laxative and antiseptic candies. Keep them in the house at all times for all members of the family, young and old—especially the children. They are sold in 25c, 50c and $1.00 boxes. Be sure you get the genuine Partola as nothing else is "just as good" or "just the same."

BAY STATE WINS FIRST LEGION FLAG

First in membership, first in subscriptions, and first in possession of its organization flag—Massachusetts. This is the proud record of the Old Bay State department of the American Legion, which has just received its flag, the first one ordered from and made by the national organization of the American Legion.

Massachusetts leads not only in membership but in the total of paid-up dues.

TO REVOKE JITNEY PERMITS IN QUINCY

Mayor Joseph L. Whiton of Quincy announced today that he would revoke the licenses of ninety operators of jitneys tomorrow. His announcement caused a stir among the jitneymen, who declare that favoritism is seen in the proposed action, as twenty or more competing jitney operators are to be allowed to continue. The revocation of the licenses follows the threat of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway trustees, which declare that unless the jitneys are taken from the streets they will suspend electric service.

REMOVAL OF SKEFFINGTON DEMANDED

Harvard Liberal Club Is Aroused; McGrady Would 'Muzzle' Langtry

Demands that Immigration Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington be removed and Secretary of State Langtry be "muzzled" were the features today of the campaign of the freedom of speech advocates led by the Harvard Liberal Club.

The club, which precipitated the present situation by criticising the roundup of Reds, presented a formal demand to Secretary of Labor Wilson that Commissioner Skeffington be removed as "incompetent and dangerous."

The demand for the "muzzling" of Secretary Langtry was voiced by Edward F. McGrady, former president of the Boston Central Labor Union. Mr. McGrady declared that Langtry "talked too much" recently and fanned "the flames of radicalism."

Mr. McGrady [illegible] Secretary Langtry for his recently quoted [illegible] favoring the shooting of Bolshevists. "He is preaching [illegible] more [illegible] than any I have [illegible]," declared the former [illegible]. "I believe that the [illegible] representing law and [illegible] should see that he is muzzled."

[illegible] for Commissioner [illegible] removal from the service followed his statement that he [illegible] the members of the Harvard Liberal Club if given a [illegible].

Apparently [illegible] Skeffington's apology in yesterday's papers failed to mollify the members of the Harvard organization, and they [illegible] to fight him to a finish.

MISTAKE ABOUT LICENSE ALMOST STOPS WEDDING

Belief that a marriage license obtained in New Hampshire would permit them to be married in Massachusetts almost upset the wedding plans of [illegible] of Newport, N. H., and Miss Mildred [illegible] Rogers of [illegible] of the same State when they arrived in Woburn. When they realized their mistake they appealed to [illegible] Edward F. Johnson, who waived the five-day marriage law and they were married by the Rev. A. [illegible], pastor of the North Congregational Church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Q. Smith, relatives of the bride. The bridegroom is attached to the United States Public Health Service at the Robert Breck Brigham Hospital, at Parker Hill, Roxbury.

SUGAR SHORTAGE NEARLY ENDED; PRICES VARY

PROTEST DISCHARGES AT NEWPORT STATION

Newport, R. I., Jan. 14—Copies of a resolution drawn up by the executive committee of the Young Men's Republican Club have been forwarded to Senator Colt and Congressman Burdick, protesting against the removal of Newport men, among them war veterans, from the Naval Torpedo Station, while residents of other cities are maintained. The club points out the fact that the torpedo station is the main source of industry for Newport labor, and that residents of other cities can get employment in their home towns.

Filene's

visiting shoe men and their ladies are this week invited to visit the Five Filene Family Shoe Shops

At Filene's there is no general "shoe department" as it is commonly known. Instead, each member of the family has his own highly specialized shop.

Each of the five shops does a volume of business of which the usual "shoe department" serving everybody might be proud.

Each shop, you see, gets its own business, and to do this it must think more and serve better!

So it is that the women's shop while devoting its major efforts to what most women want—style—has not neglected that large body of women who want comfort shoes, bunion shoes, low heel shoes, unusual widths and lengths, etc.

The children's shoe shop with its raised chairs is a kiddies' paradise. It specializes on Neverslip shoes with the perfectly flat sole, "rights and lefts," and graded widths.

The misses shop concentrates its efforts on supplying youthful shoes for college girls, and the school girls' Guardian shoes which have the straight inside tread.

The boys' shoe shop sells Guardian shoes, too, goes in for long wear, and has lately added the Buster Brown shoe to its line, as have also the girls' and children's shops.

The men's shoe shop features Arch-Preserver shoes, not as a corrective shoe but as a good shoe for anybody, carries the Johnson & Murphy line, and lays its claim to men's favorable notice on a combination of comfort, good looks and long wear.

We should be glad to hear suggestions from visiting shoe-folk.

Government Flour Makes Good Bread for Less Money

STANDARD Pure Wheat Flour now sold by the United States Grain Corporation makes fine biscuits and pastry. It makes good bread.

This flour is made from winter wheat containing an unusual amount of gluten. It does not need as much sugar or liquids in baking as the ordinary flour.

It costs about $1.55 for a 24½ lb. bag. This gives you a saving of about 70 cents on this size bag.

Your grocer can get it.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

YOUR CHILDREN NEED LAXATIVE!

The children need your closest attention, especially after "stuffing" themselves with sweets, etc., at a party or the like.

They are liable to get up in the morning complaining of cramps, bad tasting mouth, liable to have puffed eyes from restless slumber, feel tired and cranky, distempered and whimpering. Act promptly. Give them a dose of Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, which millions of mothers were given by their parents and who themselves are administering today to their little ones.

Only the purest of herbs are used; no harmful drugs—will relieve pleasantly the ordinary cases of children's biliousness, constipation, worms, etc.

Symptoms of Worms: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full [illegible], pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

POSTAL NUMBER PLAN FAVORED BY CHAMBER

Committee Sees Greater Efficiency If the Public Does Its Part

Postmaster Hurley's plan for numbering the various postal stations of Boston and vicinity has the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce committee on postal facilities. In a statement made today the committee points out that the plan is similar to that in operation in European [illegible].

Inadequacy of the present postal system, the committee says, [illegible] to the district which will be eliminated by the numbering plan, provided the public [illegible]. The only change required [illegible] of the station number [illegible] regular address.

"The directors of the Real Estate Exchange have [illegible] to endorse the new plan of the numbering of the postal stations, which goes into effect [illegible], and to give wide publicity to its members and associates as to the advantages of this plan."

Superintendent Bessing of the railroad mail service gave out the following information today relative to the numbering of postal stations:

"The new system of numbering stations in the Boston Postal District is intended to eliminate complaints of delays to mail matter improperly addressed. It is estimated that 100,000 improperly addressed letters are received in Boston daily, most of which must be sent to the general post office for directory service. Such letters are deprived of the advantage [illegible] distribution on trains.

"Correctly addressed letters are [illegible] in station pouches and dispatched direct to the proper station on the arrival of the train. Much of the business [illegible] is assigned to carrier [illegible].

"The [illegible] the confusing conditions [illegible] necessary [illegible] the Boston Postal District to [illegible] the station name in the address or change the system. The numbers were selected because [illegible] people objected to the station name while nobody objected to numbers.

"The new system will enable the Railway Mail Service to function as perfectly for all the [illegible] distributed on trains as it does for mail [illegible] it now, providing the patrons avail themselves of the opportunity."

KIWANIS CLUB VOTES TO HELP POSTAL PLAN

Acting Postmaster Hurley addressed the Boston Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Bellevue and outlined his plans for efficient distribution of mail. After Mr. Hurley had described the plan of [illegible] to replace the names of postal stations, the club voted to do everything [illegible] to assist Mr. Hurley [illegible] fee [illegible] of Boston [illegible] the new postal district numbers for ready reference. [illegible] is now composed of [illegible] representative business men of Boston.

SEIZE "WET GOODS" FROM TOURISTS AT KEY WEST

"That Cuba's hotel business is booming this Winter on account of prohibition here and that thousands of bottles of liquor are seized weekly by the Custom House officials at Key West is the news brought back from his native country by Professor Cornejo of the College of Business Administration of Boston University.

"Business is flourishing in Cuba. Money is plentiful and so is sugar. A very striking point is the progress that is being made in business by the former students of the College of Business Administration who are now in Cuba," he said.

Professor Cornejo went home to visit his wife and three months' old son at Cienfuegos, Cuba.

ALL COAL WAGE DEALS TO GO TO 'SCRAP HEAP'

Mine Operators Want Agreement That Pays No Attention to Precedents

Washington, Jan. 14.—Every wage pact precedent, arrangement and district differential established between the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers in the course of twenty-two years of collective bargaining were to be thrown into the scrapheap today and the "slate wiped clean" when the operators present their stipulation of points for arbitration before President Wilson's coal commission session here.

With the action of the miners yesterday in restating the demands made in the convention at Cleveland last September [illegible] per cent. increase [illegible] working day and a five-day working week, the operators decided to sweep aside the entire structure of wage precedents of the past and to set up a new plan formulated for such an award by the coal commission.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 10c and 25c.

How to Keep Age-Lines and Wrinkles Away

Don't forget that the woman who smiles will have a skin more free from wrinkles than the woman who frowns. When wrinkles begin to appear it is a good plan to bathe the face once a day for awhile in a harmless solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel.

This is remarkably effective in erasing the hateful lines, not only because of its astringent action, which tightens the skin and thus irons out the lines, but also because of a helpful tonic effect which improves capillary circulation and nerve tone. There is nothing better for flabby cheeks or chin. Be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite.—Advertisement.

The Miracle of Love

By COSMO HAMILTON

WITHOUT looking to see who was in the room or caring, Clive went straight as an arrow to Helena and took her in his arms and held her, kissing her lips and eyes and hair.

Harling, who had run his hand hastily over his head and fastened up his waist-coat, and his wife, who had placed herself in an attitude of conventional courtesy—hoping that she was securely buttoned up—held their breath. The Duke of Cheshire * * * whose engagement to an American heiress they had only recently commented upon * * * and Helena * * * what did it mean?

They were astonished at Helena's simplicity when she finally moved away a little and said: "Mother, let me introduce the Duke of Cheshire. Clive, this is daddy."

"How do you do?" said Mrs. Harling.

And Clive answered. "Very well, thank you."

Harling's sharp eyes were at work and his brain going like an engine. "You won't remember," he said blandly, "but I knew you and your brother before you went to Eton. Your father and I were very good friends. I stayed frequently at Sumptermead. How's your mother?"

Useless Inquiries

"Very well, thanks," said Clive, whose throbbing hand sent the blood to Helena's head. "I mean, not very well. She has sciatica abominably."

"Ah, well I know," said Mrs. Harling. "Tea. Ascott, at once. Last year about this time I had an attack that saw me through Christmas. Luckily, we have a very clever doctor here, and at present"—she touched wood three times—"there has been no return." What part had this young man played in the making of Harwich's [illegible] she wondered, and wished that Helena were not so secretive. After all, she was her mother and had a right to know something at least, and surely she must realize how awkward all this was, though certainly there was no awkwardness on their part—holding hands like that!

"I'm going to New York, Wednesday," said Clive, "and wanted to say goodbye."

"What is your ship?" asked Helena, trying to keep under control. She knew, but wanted to hear his voice.

"The Olympic," said Clive.

And then Harling, who knew nothing whatever about that ship, made several severe criticisms as to the deplorable truckling her owners had made, and would continue to make, to the snobbishness of wealth and managed with much grace and ease to talk tea in. Somehow neither he nor Mrs. Harling had the courage to turn on the lights.

An Elopement Silence

With the lights from the fire, which threw four bizarre shadows on the walls they had tea, and while the parents played a well-[illegible] and, under the circumstances, fairly expert game of conversation, returning the ball to each other over a net that seemed momentarily to grow higher and higher, Clive and Helena held hands in almost complete silence. It was, to themselves, an eloquent silence, filled with the agony of parting words, of dreadful regret, and of mutual assurances of everlasting love.

The Harlings made no attempt to leave them together, because they did not seem to desire it. In this they were right. What was the use? What could they say with mere words? It all had to be. No hand but God's could alter it.

Finally, having listened to a rather witty description of the society, of the difficulty of retaining servants in these changing times, and the effect upon the congregation of the new vicar who [illegible] many of the [illegible] from Mrs. Harling and a round dozen equally ubiquitous subjects, including, of course, "the worst government in the whole history of Parliament," from dear old Evelyn, Clive got up.

"If you will forgive me," he said, "I must be getting along. I've only just time to catch the afternoon boat back. Thank you for your great kindness." He shook hands with Mrs. Harling.

"I hope you'll have a pleasant voyage to America," she said, "and a charming stay there."

"Good-by," said Clive.

Between Two Fires

He turned slowly to Helena. With an inarticulate cry she groped her way into his arms and put her face on his shoulder. Her heart seemed to die in her body. All youth and hope and joy fell about her like the timbers of a house under the axes of a gang of breakers. She clung shaking, weeping so desperately that Mrs. Harling began to cry as she put the teacups into the tray with purposely clumsy fingers. Harling's desire not to miss anything was overcome by his habitual and deep-rooted wish to be considered a sportsman. He walked to the window, rubbed the steam away with a fastidious forefinger and looked out at the dismal skyline.

Clive lifted Helena's face, kissed her lips and neck and breast and hand, and went away. He reached out for his coat and hat, opened the door and stumbled into the street. A few months before he had stood at George's graveside. There seemed to have been another death.

When the door banged Harling turned from the window. "Now, Helena," he said sternly, "perhaps you will be good enough to explain the meaning of this extraordinary scene. If that young fellow is your lover——"

He got no further. A cry of anger broke from the girl. "Be careful," she cried, "be careful, or you'll drive me to say things that you'll never forget."

She stood blazing, eye to eye with the man who had thrown her to Harwich to save his skin, until a warm hand touched her and a broken voice whispered: "My baby, my baby!" And then she put herself, all crumpled and sobbing, against her mother's breast and broke her heart.

* * * * * *

Upon Clive's arrival in New York a long and excited telegram was handed him from [illegible] bidding him welcome and [illegible] him to come to Miami right away, telling him that father [illegible] fine and the weather down south perfectly corking.

There was nothing to keep Clive in New York. Even his [illegible] was dimpled. He felt [illegible] of painful loneliness [illegible] [illegible] as though he had two [illegible] three arms. So he [illegible] set for Jacksonville.

CLERK FINED $200 FOR LOOTING MAILS

Frank E. Nowell, who was formerly a clerk in the money order division of the Pittsfield postoffice, paid a fine of $200, which was imposed on him by Judge [illegible] of the United States District Court.

Nowell, who changed his plea of not guilty to guilty, was indicted on the charge of stealing two registered letters which contained $22.91. One of the letters was addressed to the postmaster at Hinsdale and the other to the postmaster at Cheshire.

CLEARED OF CHARGE OF SELLING LIQUOR

Salvatore Giacobozzi of Salisbury Beach, who was arrested several weeks ago on the charge of unlawfully selling distilled spirits without paying the special tax required by law, was discharged by United States Commissioner Hayes on the ground that the evidence was insufficient.

SUES CITY FOR POLICE STRIKE RIOT LOSS

Back Bay Tailor Claims $1,164 Damages—Court Reserves Decision

The liability of the city of Boston for damages to property on the night of September 9 and the morning of September 10 during the riotous proceedings which followed the police strike was involved in a suit heard by Judge [illegible] in the Municipal Court, and in which decision was reserved.

The plaintiff in the action, Albert Yanizzan, does business under the name of the Back Bay Tailoring Company at No. [illegible] Dartmouth street and sought to have the city of Boston [illegible] for goods to the value of $1,164 taken from his store by twelve or more persons who were riotously or tumultuously assembled.

Mr. Yanizzan did not see his store [illegible] but found the door broken open and pieces of bricks, stones and several empty bottles lying on the floor. The only other witness for the plaintiff was a man who occupied the basement of the premises, and who remained on guard all night to protect his stock in trade. He could not say how many persons entered Yanizzan's store, but judging from the sound of footsteps, there was quite a number.

The city did not offer any testimony, but Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill claimed that no evidence had been offered to show that the damage had been done by twelve or more persons, or that the crowd had riotously or tumultuously assembled, as required by the statute.

In this connection Mr. Hill said that the statute under which the suit was [illegible] was passed after the burning of the Ursuline Convent in Charlestown in 1834, and arose out of the insistence of broad minded men in Boston who wanted to have that [illegible] institution recompensed for the losses it had sustained at the hands of a mob.

STATE REWARD FOR MOTHERS IN NEW BILL

Old Age Pensions Provided in Measure Presented to Legislature by Thore

Wendell Phillips Thore, father of the old age pension movement in this State, today filed in the House a comprehensive bill embracing old age, invalidity and incapacity pensions and a system of maternity benefits.

Mr. Thore and Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer of Cambridge were some years ago appointed by former Governor McCall to a committee on social insurance. They evolved a plan involving the human welfare legislation, but the remainder and majority of the commission were out of step with them and the bills have been smothered year after year by the Legislature.

Governor Coolidge demanded the passage of a maternity benefit bill in his inaugural address. It is expected that the Legislature will at this session accede to his demands.

Mr. Thore's bill provides a pension of $2.50 a week for a woman of sixty and a man of sixty-five who have lived in this State for twenty years. It provides an invalidity pension of $2.50 for a person over twenty and for twenty years a resident who is incapacitated for work and whose incapacity was not self-induced.

The maternity benefit system provides for obstetrical care for a period of nine weeks for mothers. A maximum expenditure of $50 is provided, but in this as in the pension allotments, Mr. Thore said he will later urge that the maximum allowance be increased.

Out of accumulated capital have arisen all the successes of industry and applied science, all the comforts and ameliorations of the common lot. Upon it the world must depend for the process of reconstruction in which all have to share.

—JAMES J. HILL

THE successful farmer raises bigger crops and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmers' crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like the farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

PROF. CHAFEE SAYS STERLING BILL GAG ON FREE SPEECH

"We have enough legislation now to protect us against any real danger," said Professor Zachariah Chafee, Jr., of Harvard Law School, in denouncing the Sterling Sedition Bill, now before Congress. He places it in the same class with the notorious Sedition Act of 1798 which was opposed by Marshall and denounced by Jefferson and Madison."

Professor Chafee sees no danger from Reds in America. He calls the Sterling bill a "kindergarten measure," and declares it is "too powerful a weapon to entrust any human being with." "There will be a serious temptation to those in authority," he says, "in times of great strikes and other excitement, to make use of this law to bottle up the leaders."

Professor Chafee believes the real motive behind the proposed legislation is to make it possible to "bottle up strike leaders." He has written to United States Senators Colt and McCormick condemning the bill.

PROF. CHAFEE'S ARTICLE.

The article, dictated by Professor Chafee, follows:

By PROFESSOR Z. CHAFEE, JR.

The Sterling bill against sedition, which has just passed the Senate will, if it becomes law, be the first restriction by Congress of liberty of speech in time of peace with the exception of the notorious sedition act of 1798, which was opposed by Marshall and denounced as unconstitutional by Jefferson and Madison. Without any legislation against advocates of violence and revolution, this country has gone safely through much worse crises than the present.

James Ford Rhoades in the last volume of his history of the United States tells how in the midst of the great railroad strikes of 1877 when unemployment was larger than ever before or since, a big Communist meeting took place in New York. The Seventh Regiment was held in readiness to put down any actual disorder but there was no interference with anything that was said. The speakers indulged in the wildest kind of talk but everything went off tamely.

Arthur Woods used the same wise policy with success when he became police commissioner of New York city during the hard times of the summer of 1914. Under the previous administration the police had been breaking up anarchistic meetings which were held in Union square every Saturday afternoon and the crowds were in an excited, defiant and bitter mood. When Mr Woods took office he told the police to interfere in case of any actual disturbance, but not to stop any speaker. A hundred plain-clothes men were scattered through the crowd singly on the watch for violence to nip any attempt in the bud but beyond that they were to radiate good nature and try to maintain an atmosphere of quiet and calm. Mr. Woods says:

RECOMMENDS WOOD PLAN.

"The change of method was almost [illegible] successful. There was [illegible] Max Schmittberger, who had been in personal charge."

Why should we abandon this traditional American method of dealing with hot-headed agitators and revive the odious sedition act of 1798?

It may be urged that the Sterling bill does not impose penalties on [illegible] discussion but simply [illegible] those who advocate the overthrow of this government or changes in its form by means of force. We ought to remember, however, that reformers who get excited are pretty sure to take the position that force is justifiable if peaceful methods fail to gain what they consider right. In the past we have felt it wiser to let them talk than to cause much greater bitterness in them and in their friends by throwing them into prison. We have refused to arrest them unless there was a real danger that the lawlessness which they advocate would immediately take place.

BILL SWEEPING IN EFFECT.

Under the Sterling bill, however, it will be possible to go through any Socialist or Communist book or speech with a fine tooth comb and probably find a sentence here or there which can be interpreted as advocating revolution. Thus it will be possible to imprison almost any radical agitator in the absence of any real danger of revolution. There will be a serious temptation to those in authority in times of great strikes and other excitement to make use of this law to bottle up the leaders. It is too powerful a weapon to entrust any human being with.

If Judge George W. Anderson is right in his statement that 99 per cent. of the pro-German plots never existed in spite of our fear of them, and that there is no greater reason to anticipate serious Red plots, then it is just as safe as it ever was to treat revolutionary talk with contempt.

On the other hand, if there is any real plot to overthrow the government of the United States by force or to hinder the execution of its law we do not need any new legislation to deal with such a conspiracy. Section 6 of the Federal Penal Code of 1910 gives the government ample power to deal vigorously with any such emergency. This section reads: "If two or more persons, in any State or Territory, or in any place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, conspire to overthrow, put down, or to destroy by force the government of the United States, or to levy war against them, hinder, or delay the execution of any law of the United States, or by force to seize, take, or possess any property of the United States contrary to the authority thereof, they shall each be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than six years or both."

In addition every State has laws to punish severely any successful or unsuccessful attempt to destroy life and property by bombs and other violent means. We have enough legislation now to protect us against any real danger.

BOOKS BARRED FROM MAILS.

The third and fourth sections of the Sterling bill are particularly objectionable because they make it a crime to send through the mails or to import or transport from State to State any book which contains a single passage advocating any changes in this government or in all governments through force. Many of the classics of modern economics contain a few such passages in addition to theoretical discussion.

This statute would prevent a loyal citizen from obtaining the works of Marx, Proudhon, Bakunin, or Stirner from abroad or from another state and would make it criminal for a loyal book seller to buy these books for him. One particular instance will show the evil of such a statute. The faculty of Harvard University is now planning to collect in its library all books and pamphlets relating to the Russian revolution, in order to start as soon as possible to parallel the great collection which were made after years of delay of material relating to the French revolution. This statute would make it impossible to bring a large part of the material into the United States.

In the past we have been proud to [illegible] that argument for law and order, the common sense of the American people, including those who have come from Europe to help build up our industries and the noble qualities of our institutions would win out in a short time over any revolutionary talk or writing. The Sterling bill shows a serious distrust in these three great stabilizing factors of American life.

It is a kindergarten measure which assumes that our patriotism and our institutions are so weak as to crumble away at any talk of revolution. Those who have confidence in the American policy of free speech, the stability of American institutions and the sound sense of the American people ought to do all in their power to secure the defeat of this bill or any similar legislation.

GENERALS GATHER IN WASHINGTON FOR CONFERENCE

With the exception of Pershing and one or two others who were unable to attend, general officers of the United States Army gathered in Washington for a momentous conference, intended to bring staff and field officers closer together and to discuss training of soldiers with a view to keeping the army at a high point of efficiency. Secretary of War Baker and General March, chief of staff, explained the purposes of the conference. This photo, taken by International, was made in front of the War Department and shows Secretary Baker, Generals March, Edwards, Liggett, Bullard, Bell, McGlachin and others who attended the conference.

Girl Coughs Up $20 Bill That Police Couldn't Find

Viola Fell, a twenty-one-year-old laundress, coughed up $20 in the Roxbury police station today and the coughing cost her a three months' sentence in the [illegible] after she was arraigned on a charge of larceny before Judge Hayden.

Viola went to work this morning for Mrs Anna Steffany, but she refused to do certain laundry work and was fired less than an hour after being hired. After she left Mrs. Steffany missed a $20 bill. She reported her loss to the police and quick action on the part of Special Officer Hartnett resulted in the arrest of the laundress at her home, No. 131 Lenox street. She denied stealing the money.

Mrs [illegible], the police matron, searched her and was unable to find the bill. Then Viola coughed and out popped the bill. She had hidden it in her mouth, and in trying to swallow it choked and "spilled the beans."

MISSING MARINE BACK IN DAZED CONDITION

Sergeant Arthur O. Clift of the Marine recruiting station, who disappeared Saturday, returned today in a dazed condition. He was unable to tell where he had been. Sergeant Clift, who has been in the Marine Corps for fifteen years, was wounded [illegible] and it is believed that he is suffering from a belated form of shell shock. He was ordered removed to the Naval Hospital at Chelsea by Dr. W. Randolph Angelie.

GIRL BRUTALLY SLAIN ON EVE OF WEDDING

Deaf Mute Found With Throat Cut, and Police Are Seeking Her Fiance

Louisville, Jan 14—Brutally slain on what she told her friends was the eve of her marriage, Miss Rebecca Lovell, twenty-one years old, deaf and dumb, was found dead with her throat cut and nearly decapitated in the basement of a refreshment pavilion in Shawnee Park.

The end of a stiletto blade was found broken off in her neck.

Police are searching for Vance Clipp, her deaf mute sweetheart, a printer, in the hope that he can shed some light on the mystery. His father declares that he left Louisville December 31 for Akron, O., and that he received a letter from him there postmarked January 11.

The girl, who was a graduate of the Danville, Ky., School for Deaf, had been missing from the home of her sister, Mrs. Blanche Ennis, since going out to spend the night with a girl friend and promised to return early the next morning, when she planned to go to Horse Cave, Ky., where she previously had told friends she was to be married and go to California.

She had never divulged the name of her fiance, but friends heard her mention the name of Harry.

Two special delivery letters containing money, received last week and showed to girl friends, are the basis of the hopes of the police for unravelling the mystery. Both were postmarked Louisville, her friends say, and one contained $200, she told them.

Police are tracing the origin of these letters through the post office but no statement has been given out.

MAETERLINCK'S TROUBLES TO BE AIRED

Following the announcement that Maurice Maeterlinck has refused to keep his engagement to appear at Symphony Hall tonight, it was learned today that he had brought suit against J. B. Pond of the Pond Lyceum Bureau in New York, manager of his lecture tour.

The suit, brought through the law firm of Stanchfield & Levy, for a broken contract, is expected to bring to a head the trouble that has been brewing since the arrival of Maeterlinck.

The poet alleges that Pond had failed to keep an agreement to pay his expenses and a guaranteed minimum of $[illegible] a lecture.

W. S. [illegible], of counsel for Pond, declared that there had been no evasion of obligations, but that there was an attempt on foot to put someone else in the management of the lecture tour.

L. H. Mudgett, manager of Symphony Hall, received a telephone message from the Pond bureau stating that the Belgian poet and philosopher would not appear as advertised. Mr Mudgett said he was not aware of the poet's reason for disappointing his audience. He announced that money would be refunded to all persons who had purchased tickets.

As far as could be learned, Maeterlinck's lawyers have not filed papers in court, but have begun suit by the issuing of summons, and the drawing up of complaint against Mr Pond.

The poet arrived in New York with his newest wife on December 23, to witness the premier performance at the Metropolitan Opera House of "The Blue Bird," of which he composed the lyrics.

He contracted for a lecture tour of this country while in Europe, and the first of these was given a week ago Friday night in Carnegie Hall. Maeterlinck attempted to speak in improvised "phonetic" English, but this was a failure. In consequence, according to Pond's counsel, his audiences dwindled. Later it was agreed that the Belgian should deliver his lectures in French, with an interpreter to render translations.

Maeterlinck claims that he was forced to pay his own transportation to this country, and that he is at present paying his own living expenses. Pond's counsel said that no time was specified for these payments, but that it naturally could not take place until the tour ended and the proceeds were known.

It was also agreed to pay the poet's hotel expenses, he said, not to exceed $25 a day, but he declared that Maeterlinck has incurred none in New York as he is the guest of A. A. Anderson at the Beaux-Arts studios.

COE BACKS ROAD BILL IN TALK AT TAUNTON

Secretary of National Association to Urge Co-operation Between Dealer and Owner

Charles F. Coe, field secretary of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, is to address the members of the Taunton Automobile Club on the occasion of their annual meeting tonight.

The meeting is considered by many as the opening gun in a campaign in behalf of the Townsend [illegible] in the Senate. The bill takes provision for a national system of highways, and has the support of the automobile industry and owners throughout the country.

Mr. Coe will have for a subject, "The Owner and the Industry," and will try to point out to the owners how identical their interests are with the dealer and the [illegible] ways in which the dealer and the owner can co-operate to their mutual advantage.

As field secretary of the national association, Mr. Coe has toured the Eastern section of the country in behalf of constructive legislation, and recently conferred with President Vesper and Secretary Moock in New York city.

Mr. Coe has been a prominent figure in New England automobile circles for several years and recently has become connected with Barnett & Sherman, Inc., prominent Boston Ford dealers, as sales manager.

It is understood that meetings similar to the one arranged at Taunton will be held in all the principal cities of New England, New York State and Pennsylvania, and there is little doubt but that a fuller understanding of the dealers' problem on the part of the owner will tend toward a spirit of co-operation.

FREEZING EASY WITH BATTERIES DISCHARGED

Motorists who use their cars all Winter should be careful to see that their batteries are kept properly charged, says Motor Life Magazine. A battery which is allowed to deteriorate or become even partially discharged is far more likely to freeze than one which is kept in good condition, as may be readily realized by comparing the following freezing points.

Specific Gravity	Battery Condition	Freezing Point
1 280	Full	70° below zero
1 260	¼ discharged	6[illegible]° below zero
1 210	½ discharged	20° below zero
1 160	¾ discharged	zero
1 120	Empty	20° above zero

BREWERY SELLS ITS LAWRENCE REALTY

Lawrence, Jan. 14.—[illegible] has forced the Cold Spring Brewing Company to sell its real estate holdings here. This action was taken by the directors of the company at a meeting held yesterday.

The plant was founded in 1886 by Carl E. Scolossstein, brewing master of the old Stanley Bros. Brewery, at that time destroyed by fire.

The concern has been very successful and paid big dividends to its stockholders. About 100 men were thrown out of employment by the closing of the plant.

To Lecture at Harvard

John G. Callan, chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering at the University of Wisconsin, who is now on leave of absence, and Durward E. Burchell, of the New York firm of Burchell, Clark & Logan, have been appointed lecturers at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration for the balance of the current academic year.

ASK MR. FIXIT

Mr. Fixit: I have a 1919 Ford touring car [illegible]

Probably your high speed clutch is loose and slips when the car gets over a certain speed. Tighten up the fingers on the high speed clutch. The jerky motion probably comes from loose rods, etc. Look over your spark plug points and clean your timer on general principles.

[illegible] East Jaffrey, N. H.

You have a short somewhere, either where you ground on the truck or [illegible]. Clean off the plate which bears [illegible] on engine. Put on a new [illegible] this one is old and see that all your connections are good and [illegible] which you attach ground [illegible] not a rusty one or part of [illegible]. Your trouble is simple and should not be hard to remedy.

Mr. Fixit: I have a Regal Model [illegible] 443. Please advise me [illegible] the bronze band that [illegible] the pedal is pressed. P. S. H. Easton, Mass.

Write to Levine Motor Company, 4280 Diamond street, Philadelphia, or the Auto Salvage & Exchange Co., 1317 Locust street, Des Moines, Iowa.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1918 Ford without starter or generator [illegible] to do wiring. H. A. M. Newton, Mass.

Cut in on the lighting side of switch. You will find a brass screw on the dash under the hood which now holds two wires, one running to switch and one to lead [illegible]. Make a connection here and run one wire to [illegible] and then ground with another wire from [illegible] light to frame. Use 16-24 volt, 2C P bulb.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1[illegible] Chalmers roadster which I would [illegible] a five-passenger touring car [illegible] to find a body [illegible] possible. I [illegible] you give me the dimensions [illegible] permits a [illegible] change affect the power of [illegible] damaged [illegible].

Sorry we cannot give you dimensions. You could get them by writing the Chalmers Motor Company, Detroit, Mich. However, if you call up the superintendent of the service department of the Boston Chalmers agency he might tell you where you could buy a body ton and all for less than you could build one. I known he knew of one two or three weeks ago. This would not affect power of car except to add a little weight, and it naturally takes more power to carry five passengers than two.

Mr. Fixit: I always [illegible] Model 490 [illegible] readers as well as myself [illegible] can be tightened, but cannot see how it can be done. Hoping to hear from you through your column this week. R. M. Caribou, Maine.

From your letter should judge that your clutch spring is weak. I mean the spring in the barrel of the piston that forces the clutch [illegible] has been tightened [illegible] and still your [illegible] you need a new spring [illegible] want neat's foot oil.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1912 Marmon which runs well up to fifteen miles an hour but past that it seems to choke up. I think it is the carburetor. It seems to have plenty of power. I have tried to regulate the carburetor [illegible] know if you want more information through your column. H. M.

[illegible] for the high speed adjustment. Set the arrow back to 6 or as far back to the left as it will go. Then make your low-speed adjustment so the engine will idle nicely. On high it runs between 3 and 6. Try it at 3, and if it spits back give [illegible]. If it is sluggish trust it [illegible]. Clean out your strainer and gas [illegible]. Also look at points on magneto. An interesting [illegible] O. F. J. Tops [illegible] be published next week. He has a good suggestion for Ford owners.

Mr. Fixit will answer questions relative to automobile troubles through this column. Do not send stamps for reply. All letters must be signed [illegible] guarantee of good faith.

DEALER WARNS OF SHORTAGE IN TRUCKS

W. P. Woodbridge, Denby Distributor, Prepared to Meet Coming Auto Crisis

That there will be a decided shortage in trucks this year is apparent to anyone who stops for a time to consider," says W. P. Woodbridge, local Denby distributor.

"The unprecedented demand for motor trucks this year and the shortage of material, coupled with various labor troubles throughout the country has put production way behind, and I predict now that this Spring will see a serious shortage [illegible].

"Probably no better example of the [illegible] of the Denby can be cited than that of a certain contractor in Detroit who bought ten five-ton Denby trucks and then fifteen more for a very big job. The five ton trucks carry seven and one-half tons on a load and some work twenty-two hours a day and have made records of 27,000 miles without a single replacement. On account of this wonderful performance this contractor [illegible] placed another order for twenty-four more Denbys.

"Denby trucks are [illegible] for service and service is the [illegible] of our company. Our service station is amply equipped to take care of our owners in the shortest possible time, so that the truck will not be out of duty any longer than is absolutely necessary."

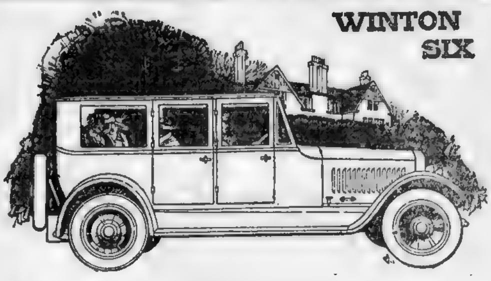
WINTON SIX



Poetry of motion

SET YOUR expectations high before you ride in it, because this surprising new Winton Six is no ordinary car. Neither is it a car with a trick motor that demonstrates well and then loses the knack.

Its amazing performances are real and inbred. They are the fruit of twelve years of devotion to the one task of perfecting the famous Winton six-cylinder motor.

Year by year that motor has improved. Today it is superb, as if touched by magic. And how smoothly it does its great work. And what a beautiful car its power enlivens with the poetry of motion.

Charm—that's it. The Winton Six has it abundantly. May we show you? Simply telephone.

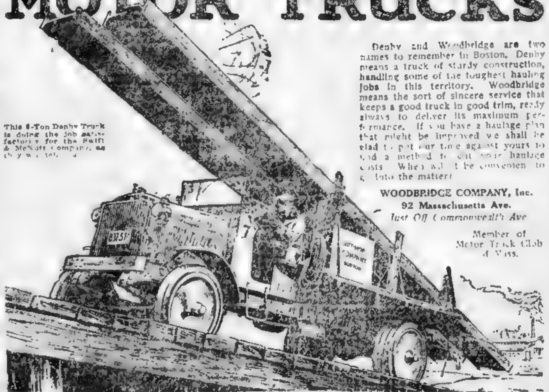
DENBY MOTOR TRUCKS



This 5-Ton Denby Truck is doing the job satisfactorily for the Swift & McNutt Company, as they will tell you.

Denby and Woodbridge are two names to remember in Boston. Denby means a truck of sturdy construction, handling some of the toughest hauling jobs in this territory. Woodbridge means the sort of sincere service that keeps a good truck in good trim, ready always to deliver its maximum performance. If you have a haulage plan that might be improved we shall be glad to pit our time against yours to find a method to cut your haulage costs. When will it be convenient to go into the matter?

RUTH NOT HARDEST HITTER

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Babe Ruth is being heralded as the greatest and the hardest hitter of all time. The question as to whether he is or not, of course, cannot be decided. He hits a baseball a terrific blow and he is one of the most powerful men, so far as arms, shoulders and back muscles are involved, that ever was in baseball.

But his hits, powerful as they are, do not prove that he is the hardest hitter. Neither was Buck Freeman, who held the home run record until Ruth broke it last year, or Frank Schulte who came near beating Freeman's record, a hard hitter in the sense of striking the ball a terrific blow. Their hits traveled far because of their perfect swings and follow through, and their wonderful timing of the ball. The fact that many overlook is that if the ball and bat meet at exactly the right instant, the ball will travel a long way even if the bat has not been swung hard.

Ruth, however, hits all balls hard. He puts all his tremendous strength back of the blow and when he happens to connect right, that ball goes away from there. Only two of his home-run hits, as far as I can learn, are near record drives. One was his smash when he sent the ball entirely over the right field end of the stands in Brush stadium and the other his drive in Detroit.

GROSS' LONG SWAT.

Getting down to the history of long hits, many players claim that the longest ever recorded was made by Em. Gross, the famous old-time catcher for Providence and Philadelphia, now a wealthy resident of Chicago. Gross, according to the old-timers, hit a ball on the Providence grounds which, after passing out of the lot, went over two houses and struck the roof of the third, bounding on over that.

Bill Dahlen's drive on the Boston National park, which cleared the roundhouse back of the left centre-field fence, is regarded as one of the longest. Heine Zimmerman hit one on the line over the top of the left-field fence in Cincinnati, the fence [illegible] thirty feet high and surmounted by a sign almost as high. [illegible] two home runs that day—[illegible] between the bottom of [illegible] the top of the fence, the [illegible] the sign itself.

[illegible] Orr's tremendous drive, which [illegible] and prevented St. Louis from winning a fifth straight pennant, is perhaps forgotten by the mass of fans, who perhaps never heard of Orr. The situation was remarkable. St. Louis was playing Columbus, and it was the last day of the season. If St. Louis won it meant another pennant. An Eastern club, Brooklyn, was practically tied with the Browns; anyhow, that team had to win and St. Louis had to lose or the Browns were champions. The news had come that the Eastern team had won its game. The score was tied. In the tenth inning, with two out, Big Dave went to bat, and with three balls and two strikes called, he swung. The ball went over the right centre-field fence, across an open lot, over a canal, across a street, and struck on the second story of a house. When I was a kid I used to go down and gaze in wonder at the star painted on the house to show where that ball struck, and to marvel over Orr.

NEWTON HIGH SEVEN TO PLAY AT CAMBRIDGE

One of the classiest Interscholastic Hockey League games of the season is on tap for tomorrow, when the Newton team crosses sticks with the Cambridge Latin septet. Both teams have won their initial league contests, Newton defeating its old rival, Brookline High, and the Cambridge team downing Arlington High. The game will be played at Russell Field, Cambridge. The lineup:

THREE BIG MAT BOUTS AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Three sizzling matches will be staged at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night and Promoter Tuohey appears to have gathered what looks like a World Congress of Rough Wrestlers in the three matches that make up the card. The clash of Mike Yokel and Charley Metro will be one of the most rugged in action, with the Albanian using all of his rough tactics in an effort to win. Nick Bozinis, now [illegible] the stars of his division, will uncover his speed against an equally fast opponent, while Patsy McCarthy will go to a finish with Billy Elias. All matches go to a finish.

SKILTON OUT OF B. A. A. LINEUP TONIGHT

PAVILION LINEUP.

B. A. A.	HARVARD CLUB.
Dowling, l.w.	r.w., Percy
Hutchinson, c.	c., Hicks
Geran, r.w.	l.w., Baldwin
O'Sullivan, c.p.	c.p., Doty
Morton, p.	p., Clifford

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Raymie Skilton will not appear in the B. A. A. hockey lineup when that array encounters the Harvard Club in the opening battle of the newly formed Boston Amateur Hockey League at the Ice Pavilion tonight.

The fact Raymie is not in tonight's lineup will not detract from the game as a game. Jerry Geran, the former Dartmouth varsity star, has been added to the Unicorn hockey team, and with Jack Hutchinson, Paul O'Sullivan, Frankie Downing, Stanley Morton and LaCroix or Buttrick in the remaining positions, the B. A. A. appears stronger than when it so masterfully performed against the Harvard varsity last Saturday, while the Harvard Club sextet, with Hicks, Percy, Baldwin, Doty, Clifford and Wylde due to start, presents an array equal in skill and ability. And to make matters more interesting, the rare rivalry existing between the two organizations has been stirred up to a pitch never before attained.

The game will start at 8:15 o'clock tonight with "Shorty" Watson as referee.

BOSTON YACHT CLUB OFFICERS ELECTED

At the first general meeting of the Eastern Yacht Club for the year, held at the Union Club, Herbert M. Sears was elected commodore for the seventh consecutive term. Charles Francis Adams was elected vice-commodore and John S. Lawrence rear commodore. Henry Taggard was re-elected secretary and Stephen W. Sleeper treasurer.

The following standing committees were elected: Members of the council at large, F. B. McQuesten and Arthur Winslow; regatta committee, C. E. Hodges, H. A. Morse, Caleb Loring and J. S. Harrold; committee on admission, R. A. Leeson, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., E. N. Wrightington and C. P. Curtis, Jr., house committee, F. A. Seamans, P. H. Kremble, H. W. Belnap, D. K. Snow and Ames Lowell.

GOLD FOOTBALLS FOR B. C. HEROES TONIGHT

Boston College football players will be the guests of the alumni at a banquet tonight at the City Club. This will be the official reception by Boston College graduates to the most successful football team that ever represented the Maroon and Old Gold.

Gold footballs, sweaters and letters will be given the conquerors of Yale, Holy Cross and Georgetown. The leader of next season's eleven also will be elected. It is believed that Louis Urban, all-round athlete, will be the next captain. Phil Corrigan, Ted Madden and Frank Morrissey may be candidates.

LOLLYPOP ORGIES

IF an established souse can't grab off his snifters he must have candy. That's the reason so many confectionery dives have sprung up lately. Law and order are down to flatbottomed zero and lollypops and crime rule the tournament. Soda water dens have sprung up right under the noses of the police. Soda water under a cop's beak is serious business.

ANY time the bulls want to round up the gaycats and yeggs they raid the backrooms of the chocolate bazaars. No grifter can work without first hyping himself up on a set of cherry phosphates. The delirium tremens boudoir at the C. H. is full of chewing gum addicts. The country is going to the spaniels at a kangaroo clip.

ON Saturday night the old man clatters into the candy store and spends his tough-earned money in riotous living. He staggers out full of lemon drops and peanut brittle with a breath reeking with salt water taffy. When the cops and firemen arrive they find that he has wound the clock the wrong way, scared his wife into a new pair of shoes and a bonnet and frightened his poor children into seven two dollar seats at the movies. Men, this wave of crime must be flattened. If you must eat lollypops, for heaven's sake don't eat the sticks. It's the wood that furnishes the matinees for the Coroner's Jury. We point to wood alcohol.

WE would like to point to other kinds of alcohol, but we don't know where to aim the finger. And pointing to wood alcohol is only a blind guess.

MOTHERS send their daughters to Vassar and Bryn Mawr to be educated and what happens? They come in contact with vicious debutantes and return home wrinkled and broken fudge rummies. A reformed caramel souse will take the vanilla Keeley cure and then marry a decent girl who never ate candy in her life. He has sons who turn out to be cough-drop fiends. You can never tell when streaks of sugar will run in a family. It's an expensive habit. The sins of the father shall be visited upon the son. And the chins of the mother shall be visited upon the son-in-law.

THE criminal who has been going around shooting all the leaves off the rubber plants is believed to be a son of wealthy parents who fed him sugar in his youth. His fingerprints were found on the embroidered doilies found only in the most expensive candy boxes.

THERE is evidence that mere school children are forming the candy habit. A powerful lollypop ring furnishes the kids with innocent-looking, all-day suckers which have a kick like a hobbled rabbit. Once the youngsters form the habit they are gumdrop sniffers for life. The new S. P. C. C., or the Society for the Prevention of Candy to Children, is working on a case where a two-months-old child was given taffy kisses in a bon-bon speak-easy and wasn't able to walk for the next six months.

THE business of making those red transparent candy animals is a cloak for the scoundrels who mix blind candy tigers in with the other harmless knick-knacks.

A THREE-WEEKS-OLD infant got hold of one of these blind candy tigers and was pickled plenty. The Secret Service is unable to grab the facts, as the baby is so sound that it can't talk.

PLAN BASKETBALL LEAGUE AT HARVARD

Basketball received another big boost at Harvard today with forty-three upper-classmen called out for the class teams which will later be organized into an informal college five. Eight seniors, fifteen juniors and twenty sophomores made up the squad, which will be swelled by the addition of unclassified students to the class teams to which they would have belonged had not the war interfered.

The class teams will play a series of games after the mid-years which will last until well into March. At the end of this series the informal College Team will be organized to compete with the Law School and other Graduate School teams. With this encouragement basketball may soon take its place as a recognized sport again in Harvard University.

SPIDER REINHARDT INJURES EAR DRUM

TECH SWIMMERS TO VISIT BROWN FRIDAY

Technology swimmers have their first meet of the season Friday night with Brown University at Providence. Coach Alex Sutherland of the Tech mermen has been working with his squad since November and has succeeded in rounding out an aggregation which compares favorably with Tech swimming teams of past years.

The team will go to Providence Friday and work out in the Brown tank before the meet, and the rest of the team will follow to Providence on Saturday. Last year's meet resulted in a victory for Tech by a narrow margin.

TOMMY MURPHY TO MEET MIKE O'DOWD AT A. A. A.

Stockyards Tommy Murphy will receive a chance to win the middleweight championship when he meets Mike O'Dowd in a twelve-round bout under the direction of the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night. Murphy has done most of his campaigning in Western rings and has put up some torrid battles.

O'Dowd is no stranger to Boston fans as he showed here on several occasions before grabbing the highest honors in his boxing class.

BABE RUTH SALE PRODUCTIVE OF KICKING

With one exception the letters from the fans printed today take exception to the sale of Babe Ruth. Loyal Fan of Everett believes that Frazee did the very best thing he could have done under the circumstances and that the Red Sox will be an improved ball club this season. The remainder express their dissatisfaction about the deal in various ways. The letters.

SOLD OTHER STARS.

MONEY AHEAD OF SPORT.

It was a case of money ahead of sport with Frazee when he sold Babe Ruth to the Yankees. I have attended baseball games regularly in this city for the past few years but I am through at Fenway Park until Frazee moves out. C. J. E., Back Bay.

DOESN'T CARE FOR SPORT.

It is too bad the Boston Club has fallen into the hands of a man who has not the slightest interest in sport. Frazee will sell any of the few remaining Red Sox stars whenever he can get the price.

A REAL FAN, Back Bay.

BEST FOR CLUB.

I have been an ardent fan for years and an admirer of Babe Ruth ever since he has played for the Boston club but I still think Frazee did the best thing possible when he sold his star slugger. It means a better ball club this year. Ruth was trying to run the club and the other players resented his actions. Frazee did a great thing for Boston baseball. A LOYAL FAN, Everett.

TOLERANT BOSTON.

When Frazee disposed of Babe Ruth to the New York club he pulled a deal which would be tolerated by the fans in no other city but Boston. Other clubs owners hold on to their outstanding stars until the latter are past their usefulness. The talk of Ruth being a trouble maker is all bosh and is intended only to cover up Frazee, who does not care about landing a pennant for Boston but wants to gather in all the coin he can. If the Red Sox were a one-man team last season the fault lay with Barrow, the manager, rather than with Ruth, the player.

J. E. L., Waltham.

DESERVES BROWN DERBY.

Frazee deserves the brown derby for his sale of Babe Ruth. I wouldn't have him trade a sick cow for me.

J. C., East Cambridge.

CHALLENGES RED SOX.

If Frazee will only release Hooper and Scott now, I will scramble together a team in the South End and whitewash his Red Sox for him. The Ruth deal was the worst ever put over on the Boston fans.

B. D., South End.

FOOTBALL MASCOT HOSTESS TO B. U. TEAM

Boston University's football team "mascot" will be hostess at a party given in honor of the B. U. football squad tomorrow night at the College of Business Administration gymnasium by girls of the Colleges of Liberal Arts, Business Administration and Secretarial Science. This is the first affair given in recognition of the B. U. men's endeavor to put the Red and White on the college gridiron map.

Miss Florence E. Whittier of Dorchester, a C. L. A. sophomore, the only student to attend all five games on the B. U. schedule, is in charge of the affair. She has been dubbed the "mascot" by the football men.

Basketball Series

The Bunker Hill Council, K. of C., basketball team opens a series of three games with the Fitton A. C. of East Boston tomorrow night. The first game will be played at the State Armory, Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

MARTIN BATTLES FRIEDMAN AT MARIEVILLE

By JACK CONWAY.

Abe Friedman, who stopped Max Williamson in four rounds at New Bedford Monday night, will have Terry Martin as an opponent in a twelve-round contest at Marieville tonight. It should [illegible] as it will be another case of a classy boxer meeting a youth who packs a solid punch in each hand.

Friedman is the representative of clever boxing, while Martin will try to convince the well known universe that the kayo wallop is still king.

When Friedman first invaded this sector, he got off to a poor start. This was due to a period of inactivity in the ring. The little New Yorker has finally got going at his true clip, as he proved by the way he disposed of Williamson. The latter is the youth Johnny Mooney tried to match with Jimmy Wilde at one of the Philadelphia clubs.

Martin is a tireless, two-handed scrapper, but it looks as though he is liable to receive an upset this p. m.

Paul Doyle, one of the real stars of the boxing game hereabouts, will receive plenty of opposition when he meets Joe Phillips of Philadelphia in a twelve-round contest at Milford tonight. Phillips is known as the "Iron Man" in the Quaker City. He has exchanged blows with Willie Jackson and Johnny Dundee and hopes to make things interesting for Doyle.

Charley (Kid) Miller of the South End will have Tommy Flanagan of Cambridge as his opponent in the semi-final of [illegible] rounds.

Frankie Callahan has received royal receptions wherever introduced at the local clubs. At the Suffolk Club the former Brooklyn lightweight was given a fine reception while he also got a big hand at the Armory Club. Callahan's right hand which he broke in his contest with Lew Tendler, is now as well as ever. All of which means there are some stirring [illegible] ahead for the head liners in the lightweight class.

Callahan will commence a new campaign when he clashes with Eddie Morgan of King and in a twelve-round contest at the Crescent A. C. of Lowell [illegible].

The Commonwealth A. C. will stage a regular big league scrap tomorrow night. Johnny Downes of South Boston and Frankie Brown of New York will be the principals in a twelve-round encounter. As there is bitter rivalry between this pair, the fans are sure to see a stirring battle.

It will be the third meeting between these boxers. Their previous engagements were staged at Lowell. The first scrap was a draw and was featured by all kinds of rough boxing. After Brown pushed one of his thumbs into one of Downes' optics, the latter bit the New Yorker.

The second contest was even more bitterly contested than the first if such a thing is possible. Downes was disqualified by the referee late in the tussle.

Downes has trained with Frankie Callahan, and the latter believes the South Boston boy will win.

"I think Downes is one of the classiest lightweights in the East," said Callahan today. "I have seen Brown fight on numerous occasions, but I believe Downes is too clever for him."

Jim McDonald announces that Eddie Trembly is open to meet any welterweight in the world. Trembly's latest feat was a knockout victory over Jake Ahearn. Trembly possesses a world of class and would not lack for backers in a contest with any of the Eastern middleweights. Trembly's next start will probably be against George Chip at Montreal.

There is nothing which would please John Lester Johnson any better than a tussle with Larry Williams of Bridgeport. Johnson is one of the few boxers who can boast of having received even a newspaper decision over Jack Dempsey.

SIMLER BOXES DRAW WITH YELLE

Freddy Yelle, Taunton lightweight, fought a stirring twelve-round draw with Chick Simler of South Boston in the feature bout at the Armory Club. A rally in the twelfth session was the only thing that prevented Simler from losing the decision. Yelle had a slight margin on his opponent when festivities ended, but it was not quite large enough to entitle him to the award.

Yelle is a vastly improved boxer. He today stands out as one of the best men of his weight in New England. It is doubtful if even Frankie (Young) Britt would be able to conquer the Taunton scrapper.

Simler had the best of the going in the early rounds. At the end of the sixth frame it looked as though Simler would win. Yelle then got started and piled up a fine margin of points before the eleventh chapter came to a close. Then Simler staged his whirlwind finish and got a draw.

Shaver O'Brien of South Boston had an easy time winning over Joey Connolly, Charlestown boxer, in the other twelve-round scrap. Connolly was not in good physical condition and tired when the pace became fast.

This Day in History—Jan. 14, 1920

THIS is the anniversary of the coining by Czar Nicholas in 1854 of the phrase, "The Sick Man of Europe," in referring to Turkey. The Russian ruler's characterization immediately became a popular catchword. The Czar little dreamed his own autocratic government would collapse before the downfall of the Turk.

Common Superstitions

MOST people are superstitious. With some the breaking of a looking glass means a gloomy foreboding. Peacock feathers were formerly considered bearers of sickness. The Greeks and Romans of ancient times put implicit trust in omens, and never undertook enterprise of any moment without consulting the oracle.

THE CINEMA MURDER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

A Thrilling Mystery Film Serial of Love and Poverty With the Scene Laid in London and New York

"The Cinema Murder" in motion pictures, with Miss Marion Davies as the charming heroine, a Cosmopolitan production, is being shown this week at the Washington and Old South Theatres in Boston and the Olympia in Chelsea. Screened under direction of George D. Baker. Presented by Famous Players-Laskey Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft Picture.

What Has Gone Before

Philip Romilly, a poor London art teacher, calls on the girl he is engaged to at his old home, Dutton Magna, and she tells him she is tired of waiting for him to get enough money to marry on, and has promised to wed Douglas, his cousin. She taunts him with his poverty and he leaves the house, walking towards a canal nearby. He takes passage for America as Douglas Romilly. He meets Elizabeth Dalstan, the pretty young movie actress, at his table on board ship. From a story told by Raymond Greene, a movie magnate, he gets the idea he is suspected of being involved in a crime committed near the canal. He tells Elizabeth that he is an imposter. A wireless message is received telling of the strange disappearance in England of Philip Romilly. He arrives in New York and finds a cablegram saying that Douglas Romilly's wealth is a myth. He assumes the name of Merton Ware.

THERE was nothing particularly ingratiating about Miss Martha Grimes, but, with the exception of a colored waiter, she happened to be the first human being with whom Philip had exchanged a word for several days. He felt disinclined to hurry her away.

"Come in," he invited, holding the door open. "So you do typing, eh? What sort of a machine do you use?"

"Remington," she answered. "It's a bit knocked about—a few of the letters, I mean—but I've got some violent ink and I can make a manuscript look all right. Half a dollar a thousand words, and a quarter for carbon copies. Of course, if you'd got a lot of stuff," she went on, her eyes lighting hopefully upon the little collection of manuscript upon his table, "I might quote you a trifle less."

He picked up some of his sheets and glanced at them.

"Sooner or later," he admitted, "I shall have to have this typed. It isn't quite ready yet, though."

He was struck by the curious little light of anticipation which somehow changed her face, and which passed away at his last words. Under pretence of collecting together some of the loose pages, he examined her more closely and realized that he had done her at first scant justice. She was very thin, and the expression of her face was spoilt by the discontented curve of her lips. The shape of her head, however, was good. Her dark hair, notwithstanding its temporary disarrangement, was of beautiful quality, and her eyes, though dull and spiritless-looking, were large and full of subtle promise. He replaced the sheets of manuscript.

"Sit down for a moment," he begged.

"I'd rather stand," she replied.

"Just as you please," he assented, smiling. "I was just wondering what to do about this stuff."

She hesitated for a moment, then a little sulkily she seated herself.

"I suppose you think I'm a pretty forward young person to come up here and beg for work. I don't care if you do," she went on, swinging her foot back and forth. "One has to live."

"I am very pleased that you came," he assured her. "It will be a great convenience to me to have my typing done on the premises, and although I am afraid there won't be much of it, you shall certainly do what there is."

"Story writer?" she inquired.

"I am only a beginner," he told her. "This is work I am going to give [illegible]."

"Sickening job, ain't it, writing for the stage unless you've got some sort of pull."

"This is my first effort," he explained.

"Well, it's none of my business," she said gloomily, "but I want the typing of it. You should see some of the trash I've had! I've hated to send in the bills. Waste of good time and paper. I don't suppose yours is like that, but there ain't much written that's good, anyway."

"You're a hopeful young person, aren't you?" he remarked, taking a cigarette from the mantelpiece and lighting it. "Have one?"

"No, thank you," she replied, rising briskly to her feet. "I'm not that sort that sits about and smokes cigarettes with strange young men. If you'll let me know when that work's going to be ready, I'll send the janitor up for it."

He smiled deprecatingly.

"You're not afraid of me, by any chance, are you?" he asked.

Her eyes glowed with contempt as she looked him up and down.

"Afraid of you, sir?" she repeated. "I should say not! I've met all sorts of men and I know something about them."

"Then sit down again, please," he begged.

She hesitated for a moment, then subsided once more unwillingly into the chair.

"Don't know as I want to stay up here gossiping," she remarked. "You'd much better be getting on with your work. Give me one of those cigarettes, anyway," she added abruptly.

"Do you live in the building?" he inquired, as he obeyed her behest.

"Two flats below with pop," she replied. "He's a bad actor, very seldom in work, and he drinks. There are just the two of us. Now you know as much as is good for you. You're English, ain't you?"

In Jamaica

"I am," Philip admitted.

"Just out, too, by the way you talk."

"I have been living in Jamaica," he told her, "for many years—clerk in an office there."

"Better have stayed where you were, I should think, if you've come here hoping to make a living by that sort of stuff."

"Perhaps you're right," he agreed, "but you see I am here—been here a week or two, in fact."

"Done much visiting around?" she inquired.

"I've scarcely been out," he confessed. "You see, I don't know the city except from my windows. It's wonderful from here after twilight."

"Think so," she replied dully. "It's a hard, hammering, brazen sort of place when you're living in it from hand to mouth. Not but what we don't get along all right," she added, a little defiantly. "I'm not grumbling."

"I am sure you're not," he assented soothingly. "Tell me—tonight I am a little tired of work. I thought of going out. Be a Good Samaritan and tell me where to find a restaurant in Broadway, somewhere where crowds of people go but not what they call a fashionable place. I want to get some dinner — I haven't had anything decent to eat for I don't know how long—and I want to breathe the same atmosphere as other people."

"How much do you want to spend?" she asked bluntly.

"I don't know that that really matters very much. I have some money. Things are more expensive over here, aren't they?"

"I should go to the New Martin House," she advised him, "right at the corner of this block. It's real swell, and they say the food's wonderful."

"I could go as I am, I suppose?" he asked, glancing down at his clothes.

She stared at him wonderingly.

"Say, where did you come from?" she exclaimed. "You ain't supposed to dress yourself out in glad clothes for a Broadway restaurant, not even the best of them."

"Have you been to this place yourself?" he inquired.

"Nope."

"Come with me," he invited suddenly.

She arose at once to her feet and threw the remains of her cigarette into the grate.

"Say, Mr. Ware," she pronounced, "I ain't that sort, and the sooner you know it the better, especially if I'm going to do your work. I'll be going."

"Look here," he remonstrated earnestly, "you don't seem to understand me altogether. What do you mean by saying that you're not that sort?"

"You know well enough," she answered defiantly. "I guess you're not proposing to give me a supper out of charity, are you?"

An Invitation

"I am asking you to accompany me," he declared, "because I haven't spoken to a human being for a week, because I don't know a soul in New York, because I've got enough to pay for two dinners and because I am fiendishly lonely."

She looked at him and it was obvious that she was more than half convinced. Her brightening expression transformed her face. She was still hesitating, but her inclinations were apparent.

"Say, you mean that straight?" she asked. "You won't turn around afterwards and expect a lot of soft sawder because you've bought me a meal?"

"Don't be a silly little fool," he answered good-humoredly. "All I want from you is to sit by my side and talk, and tell me what to order."

"If I am going like this," he expostulated, "why can't you go as you are? Take your apron off. You'll be all right."

"There's my black hat with the ribbon," she reminded herself. "It's no style, and Stella said yesterday she wouldn't be seen in a dime show in it."

"Never you mind about Stella," he insisted confidently. "You clap it on your head and come along."

She swung towards the door.

"Meet you in the hall in ten minutes," she promised. "Can't be any quicker. This is your trouble, you know. I didn't invite myself."

Philip opened the door, a civility which seemed to somewhat embarrass her.

"I shall be waiting for you," he declared cheerfully.

YET she had promised Hugh to take care of his betrothed for him—to preserve to him the happiness without which he would not want to live.

"Dear," she said now, taking her companion's hand as she sat by her in the cab. "I know how anxious you are. Do not think that I am not sorry for you."

Doris looked at the speaker in surprise. Then she smiled. "Thank you for telling me so, Ruthie. I confess that sometimes lately you have not seemed very sorry. All this is hard on me, and I am frightened at what is ahead of me."

"I cannot see why you should be frightened all of a sudden," Ruth said.

"Because of the way Mr. Rodney spoke," Doris told her tremulously. "From his manner I fancied some dreadful thing is the matter with Hugh. If he looks awful, what shall I do?"

"Love him harder than ever!" was the quick reply. "Dear, forget about yourself and think only of him. When one loves another, that should be easy."

CHAPTER XV.

HUGH RODNEY'S father met the two Courtney girls in the hall of his house and led them into the drawing room. He shook hands with them before speaking.

Doris eyed him timidly. Ruth anxiously. It was plain that he was more agitated than he wished to show, and was keeping a strong hold on himself.

It was to Ruth that he addressed his first remark. "I am glad that you came, too, my dear," he said. "It was kind of you. But Laura is still feverish, and I do not believe that you ought to go up to her room until her throat is better."

Ruth explained briefly that she had not come to see Laura.

"I would be glad to see her, of course," she hastened to add. "But I did not expect to. I came with Doris, for she is very anxious about Hugh."

Daniel Rodney turned to his [redacted] betrothed.

"Hugh is up in the library," he said bluntly. "I must warn you that he does not look like the man who went away a few months ago. He is much changed—by illness and by his accident. You must be prepared for that."

A Blow to Ruth

He paused to steady his voice. There was a dead silence. Then Ruth spoke.

"Laura told me, and I told Doris, that Hugh was not well even before the explosion. And she understands that the nervous effect of such a shock is dreadful. So she expects to find him changed."

Still Doris was silent. Again the father addressed her.

"But Laura did not tell you all, my child. It is true that Hugh is thin and haggard. That might not astonish you, knowing as you do what he has been through. But, my dear, his eyes——"

"What!" Doris' ejaculation was a tense whisper. She clasped her hands nervously. "You do not mean that——"

The father nodded. "B'ind—yes!"

"Oh, God!"

The most inaudible exclamation was too much like a prayer to sound profane. It was Ruth, not Doris, who uttered it.

At the sound the father held his hand out to the younger girl and she took it in both her hands, holding it fast.

"Forgive me, dear Mr. Rodney," she begged, "for exclaiming as I did. You have all that you can bear now. And Hugh is so young—so strong—that even yet his eyes may be——"

She stopped, her voice breaking. At this sign of her emotion her sister turned to her eagerly. She had not spoken since receiving the shocking news.

"Ruth—what shall I do?"

The parent echoed the last word suddenly. For a moment he seemed to have forgotten her presence.

"Do?" he repeated, taking a step toward her. "Why, there is but one thing for you to do. Go up to Hugh. Heaven knows, he needs you badly enough! I promised to bring you up. I have been a selfish beast to keep you here as long as this. But I had to tell you the truth—had to prepare you."

Doris appealed to her sister. "Ruth," she begged, "please go upstairs with me. I cannot bear to see him alone."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Don't stay gray! Nobody can tell when you darken gray, faded hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease. —Advertisement.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious, fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

Mother! You must say "California." —Advertisement.

DOUBLE BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

"Danderine" creates mass of thick, gleamy waves

In a few moments you can transform your plain, dull flat hair. You can have it abundant, soft, glossy and full of life. Just get at any drug or toilet counter a small bottle of "Danderine" for a few cents. Then moisten a soft cloth with the "Danderine" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous and so easy to do up. All dust, dirt and excessive oil is removed.

Let Danderine put more life, color, vigor, and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful. Advertisement.

THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS

Thrilling Romance in Which a Girl Helps Win Big Fight in the Logging Region

By Peter B. Kyne

"ALL clear and snug as a bug under a chip, my dear," he called to Shirley. "Thank God, the caboose became uncoupled—guess that fool brakeman forgot to drop the pin; it was the last car, and when it jumped the track and plowed into the dirt it just naturally quit and toppled over against the bank. Come out, my dear."

Shirley came out, dry-eyed, but white and trembling. The Colonel placed his arm around her and she hid her face on his shoulder and shuddered. "There, there!" he soothed her affectionately. "It's all over, my dear. All's well that ends well."

"The train," she cried in a choking voice. "Where is it?"

"In little pieces—down in Mad River." He laughed happily. "And the logs weren't even mine! As for the trucks, they were a lot of ratty antiques and only fit to haul Cardigan's logs. About a hundred yards of roadbed ruined—that's the extent of my loss, for I'd charged off the trucks to profit and loss two years ago."

"Bryce Cardigan," she sobbed. "I saw him—he was riding a top log on the train. He—ah, God help him!"

The Colonel shook her with sudden ferocity. "Young Cardigan," he cried sharply. "Riding the logs? Are you certain?"

"Then Bryce Cardigan is gone!" Pennington's pronouncement was solemn, deadly with its flat finality. "No man could have rolled down into Mad River with a trainload of logs and survived. The devil himself couldn't." He heaved a great sigh and added: "Well, that clears the atmosphere considerably, although for all his faults, I regret, for his father's sake, that this dreadful affair has happened. Well, it can't be helped, Shirley. Don't cry, my dear. I know it's terrible, but—there, there my love. Do brace up. Poor devil! For all his damnable treatment of me, I wouldn't have had this happen for a million dollars."

Wild Weeping

Shirley burst into wild weeping. Bryce's heart leaped, for he understood the reason for her grief. She had sent him away in anger, and he had gone to his death; ergo it would be long before Shirley would forgive herself. Bryce had not intended presenting himself before her in his battered and bloody condition, but the sight of her distress now was more than he could bear. He coughed slightly, and the alert Colonel glanced up at him instantly.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" The words fell from Pennington's lips with a heartiness that was almost touching. "I thought you'd gone with the train."

"Sorry to disappoint you, old top," Bryce replied blithely, "but I'm just naturally stubborn. Too bad about the atmosphere you thought cleared a moment ago! It's clogged worse than ever now."

At the sound of Bryce's voice, Shirley raised her head, whirled and looked up at him. He held his handkerchief over his gory face that the sight might not distress her; he could have whooped with delight at the joy that flashed through her wet lids.

She stamped her foot. "Come here!"

"Well, since you insist," he replied, and he slid down the bank.

"How did you get up there—and what do you mean by hiding there spying on me, you—you—oh, you!"

"Cuss a little, if it will help any," he suggested. "I had to get out of your way—out of your sight—and up there was the best place. I was on the roof of the caboose when it toppled over, so all I had to do was step ashore and sit down."

Saw Her Weeping

"Then why didn't you stay there?" she demanded furiously.

"You wouldn't let me," he answered demurely. "And when I saw you weeping because I was supposed to be with the angels, I couldn't help coughing to let you know I was still hanging around, ornery as a book-agent."

"How did you ruin your face, Mr. Cardigan?"

"Tried to take a cast of the front end of the caboose in my classic countenance—that's all."

"But you were riding the top log on the last truck——"

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 14.—The government consumption figures at the opening of the cotton market had no effect, owing to selling by Wall Street houses and scattered liquidation. Prices started 10 points higher to 12 points lower. Support, mostly from the trade and Liverpool, was not sufficient to absorb the contracts and prices fell until at the end of the twenty minutes the [illegible] showed a net loss of about 40 points. Opening prices were: January, 38.20; March, 36.28; May, 34.70; July, 33.20; October, 30.75.

Consumption of Cotton

Washington, Jan. 14.—The Census Bureau reports that 511,685 bales of lint cotton were consumed in the United States during December, 1919, compared with 490,658 in November, and 472,941 in December, 1918. Total consumption for the season from August 1, 1919, to December 30, 1919, amounted to 2,551,476 bales, compared with 2,395,611 the year before.

STEELS YIELD UNDER BEAR PRESSURE

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, when prices were at their lowest. The slight rally in the second hour was brief. The market was active, first hour transactions totalling about 320,000 shares and trading being brisk in the second. Call money renewed at 8 per cent. There was little change at the opening of the foreign exchange market, but sterling demand and lire advanced.

Steels weakened during the morning. U. S. Steel receding more than a point, Republic almost four and Crucible more than seven. Among weakest issues at noon were American Woolen common, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Chandler, General Motors, Studebaker, Marine common, Mexican Petroleum, Middle States Oil, Texas Co., Industrial Alcohol and U. S. Rubber. They were showing from three to eight point losses.

STEADY DECLINE FROM OPENING

Prices were lower at the opening and steadily declined during the first hour. The movement was easy but continuous in the instance of the majority of active issues. Oils were the conspicuously weak group. After starting with a gain of nearly two points Texas Co. soon sold five below Tuesday's closing figures, almost a seven-point drop within thirty minutes. General Motors was under immediate pressure, receding about five on the opening sale. Crucible started with a drop of more than four and steels were weak as a class. Oils and steels were the most active issues. Many orders to sell accumulated over night and stocks were in unusual supply when trading began. Busy and persistent bears met with little resistance.

MONEY REMAINS SCARCE.

The call rate did not ascend as far Tuesday as on Monday, and took a decided drop before the close yesterday. But this was not reassuring as all the money talk in financial districts indicates belief that funds will be scarce for some time. The immediate outlook for small speculators is dubious and undoubtedly big interests are expecting opportunities to add to their accumulations by getting stocks cheap. The public is holding aloof and some of the pools are thought to be in a precarious position. At the end of the first hour prices were on a much lower level than at the opening and all kinds of stocks excepting coppers and rails had yielded a point or more. The steadiness of coppers and rails was due chiefly to neglect. But it is said that some of the standard rails are being quietly bought for investment purposes. A good deal of odd lot buying in New York is reported.

TRADING QUIET AND PRICES LOWER

At the Boston opening the list was irregular, but the majority of price changes were downward. Many issues were unchanged on first sales. The market weakened at once and the trend was recessional throughout the forenoon. Trading was very narrow and aside from Carson, Mayflower-Old Colony, Ventura and Waldorf there was no activity. Fluctuations averaged small. Nothing developed of especial interest and the market had the same general character as during the preceding session.

United Drug common opened with a point gain and lost it on the next sale. Island Creek gained a point in the second hour on one sale. Among fractional advances were American Telephone, New Haven, U. S. Smelting, Ventura, New England Telephone, Davis Daly and Daly West.

Declines of a point or more were suffered by Root & Van Dervoort, Old Dominion and Osceola. Among those to recede fractionally were East Butte, Mayflower North Butte, Stewart, International Leather, Carson Hill, Elder, Ohio Body, Swift International, and Waldorf.

CURB MARKET IS WEAK.

Most of the Curb leaders receded and that market had a weak tone. At the opening stocks to sell lower included Verde Mines, Texana, Pioneer, Chief, Arizona Silver and Albany. Among issues to advance were Clinton Wright, Arizona Extension, Imperial, Mutual Divide, Gilliland, White Oil and Seven Metals.

During the first hour a downward trend developed and at the end of that period losses included Arizona Extension 5 cents at 46, Silver Reef 5 cents at 30 cents, Imperial 1 cent at 30 cents, Gilliland ½ at 50, Simms Petroleum ¼ at 62⅝ and White Oil ⅝ at 41.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Stockholders of the Fourth-Atlantic National Bank have authorized the proposed $500,000 increase in capital stock.

National Shawmut Bank directors have appointed F. C. Nichols a vice-president, Earl P. Filmore and Leon H. White assistant cashiers, and Frank H. Wrigley and William J. Hartney assistant managers of the foreign department.

F. Haven Clark has been elected a member of the Boston Stock Exchange, having acquired the seat of John F. Doyle, who has entered the firm of Scudder, Stevens & Clark as a special partner.

Simms Petroleum is to construct an eight-inch pipe line from the Homer field to a point on the Mississippi River near New Orleans, with pumping stations forty miles apart and a daily capacity approximating 20,000 barrels. The pipe line alone will cost about $5,000,000.

Copper in More Demand

Demand for copper is increasing, leading selling agencies report. Quotations are unchanged as yet but an advance may come soon if inquiries for metal continue in present volume. Some of the largest consumers are stocking up enough to meet their requirements for several months ahead in anticipation of higher priced copper later in the year.

Gold and Silver Exports

During 1919 this country, which has the largest stocks of precious metals, exported gold to the amount of $368,144,545 and silver valued at $239,001,081, while gold imports were $76,534,046 and silver receipts $89,389,536.

Furniture.

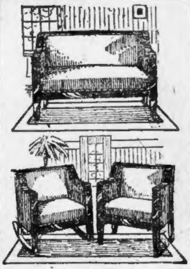
25 CENTS
FOR THIS 10-PIECE
$15 Aluminum Set

If you buy $100 worth or more this month. This is the kind of value this big uptown store is offering in its big

January Furniture Sale

In spite of the fact that prices are much higher than they were in the Fall, and getting harder to get. Because January is an off month for furniture sales, we are going to sacrifice and have decided to make a big cut in prices to stimulate January business, so if you buy this month you are going to get the biggest values of the year and save a big amount. Let us show you, it is a pleasure whether you buy or not.

A SALE VALUE



$115 VALUE } $72

That has shown a discriminating public what an attractive saving we are making for it during our January Sale. This is a 3-piece, high-grade Living Room Suite, one that you would be proud to own. Attractively finished in mahogany, the covering is a long-wearing moleskin that lasts much longer than the cheap grade of leather now being used. The seats are deep and soft, the backs are high and comfortable—a suite that will lend individuality to your home. Going price $115. Sale price $72.

Other Sale Values

$6 Iron Bed.................$2.99
$55 Axminster Rug.............$32.50
$33 Hair & Felt Mattress.......$22.00
$6 Box-Seated Dining Chair.......$3.50

These are but a few of the values we are showing. It will pay you to come uptown and see this big saving.

SEE OUR $100

Full-size Mahogany Graphophone. It is the equal of any $150 instrument you have ever heard. Here also in our Grafonola shop you will find the latest records, as well as the finest instruments the market affords.

LOOK FIRST ALL YOU CAN

then see us. You will more readily see just how much we can save you, as well as how much cozier we can furnish your home.

Special Payments

may be arranged if you so desire; you may pay a comfortable amount at time of purchase and a comfortable amount each week until it is paid for. Six months' credit without interest.

We Must Resist Treason in All Official as Well as Anarchist Circles

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

The suspension of the five Socialist members of the New York Legislature is the most serious assault upon the liberties of the American people that has been made since a British King and Parliament forced our fathers to protect their freedom with arms in their hands.

Not all the anarchists in the country multiplied by ten could strike such a deadly blow at law and order.

Not all the anarchists from Herr Most's day down to this present hour ever did strike such a deadly blow at our system of free, representative government.

We do not belong to the Socialist party. We are not in the least convinced that its theory of government is as good as the theory of government expounded in the Constitution of the United States. But just because we do believe in the theory of government expounded in the Constitution of the United States we emphatically protest against the suspension and the intended expulsion of the five Socialist representatives in the New York State Legislature.

It is a high-handed act of tyranny, a criminal assault upon public liberty, a treasonable defiance of the Constitution and flat rebellion against the written laws and the inherent sovereignty of the people.

This treason of the majority in that Legislature must be fought with every lawful weapon that a patriotic press and patriotic citizenry can find to use.

We should think that any man with an ounce of common sense could see that the denial of representation to citizens who choose representatives inimical to a majority in a Legislature—or in the Federal Congress—is destructive of ALL liberties, destructive of ALL guarantees, destructive of ALL FREE GOVERNMENT and destructive of that confidence in the protection and authority of the Constitution and the laws upon which free government alone securely rests.

The men who have committed this assault upon the rights of the five Socialist members, and upon the rights of the people who elected these five representatives, are either conscious traitors to their oaths to obey and defend the Constitution and the laws, or else they are fools who are not mentally capable of understanding their own imbecile folly.

It is impossible for free government to exist without representative freedom, without the safety and inviolability of each and every representative's right to represent the group of citizens which elects him.

That is fundamental. There is no argument about it.

Whenever the right of representation is destroyed the people no longer rule themselves. They are ruled by masters. They are SUBJECTS, not citizens.

And we Americans do not intend to be subjects.

We Americans must make a stand once for all against the ly increasing encroachments upon our rights, and our liberties, l our form of free government. The hour is come when these cial tyrants of our own creation must be made to recognize the tations of their authority; must be made to realize that this is Republic of the United States and not a hunting preserve for nderbunds, autocrats, bureaucrats and secret police spies.

As a result of the war there is a powerful and very dangerous nspiracy to overthrow democracy everywhere in the world.

The agents of this conspiracy are at work here in America, precisely as they are at work in Europe and in our neighboring countries on this continent.

They are in our Congress, in our Legislatures, in our newspaper and periodical offices, in our pulpits, in our schools. And everywhere they are making a simultaneous assault upon free speech, free press, free assembly, free representation.

Everywhere they advocate repressive legislation to curb the right of opinion and discussion, and everywhere they incite and applaud mob violence against men and journals that speak out for the rights and the interests of the plain people.

In Canada—which has always hitherto been free—the authorities have actually indicted and are trying a minister for quoting the Bible in print.

That is literally true. The indictment upon which Rev. J. S. Woodsworth is being tried reads:

> That J. S. Woodsworth in or about the month of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, at the City of Winnipeg, in the Province of Manitoba, unlawfully and seditiously published libels in the words and figures following:
> "Woe unto them that decree unrighteous decrees, and that write grievances which they have prescribed; to turn aside the needy from judgment, and to take away the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherless."—Isaiah.
> "And they shall build houses and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat; for the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands."—Isaiah.

The Canadian people are not one whit less courageous and liberty-loving than we are, and if this sort of thing can be successfully done to Canadians by official tools of the financial plunderbund, then it will be attempted upon Americans.

And it will be done to Americans unless we destroy the spirit of official tyranny before it becomes too strong for us to destroy with peaceable weapons.

There should be a powerful and steady insistence that Congress at once wipe the tyrannical Espionage law and similar war legislation from the statutes; that Congress reject the infamous "alien and sedition" bills now before the Senate and the House; that the Department of Justice halt its abuses of questionable secret police powers, tolerable in time of war, but intolerable to a free people in time of peace; that the press be at once freed from the tyranny of the postmaster-general—in short, that ALL our public servants drop their offensive attitude of mastership over our speech and actions and realize that they ARE our hired men and not our rulers and masters.

TO THE New Mayor.
OF PHILADELPHIA.
MY DEAR Mr. Mayor.
I WROTE you yesterday.
ABOUT BROTHERLY love.
AND THE very nice party
THAT CAME to New York.
FROM PHILADELPHIA.
AND AT 2 in the morning.
STARTED SHOOTING craps.
IN THE rooms next to ours.
IN OUR hotel.
AND OF how they were kind.
AND LET me in.
BY SHOVING my money.
UNDERNEATH THE door.
AND I won four dollars.
AND THOUGH I never saw them.
I WAS sure I liked them.
• • •
AND I'M writing you now.
BECAUSE AGAIN last night.
THEY WENT out to a show.
AND THEN to eat.
AND ALONG about one.
THEY CAME in again.
AND THEY woke me up.
WITH A gentle rap.
ON THE unused door.
THAT SHUTS us off.
FROM WHERE they are.
AND WHAT they wanted.
WAS TO let me know.
• • •
THEY WERE going to shoot craps.
FOR JUST an hour.
AND DID I want to get in.
AND THEY'D kept me awake.
HALF THE night before.
AND I didn't want to get in.
AND I wanted to sleep.
• • •
AND I told them no.
AND WENT back to bed.
AND THEN they started.
AND I'LL have to admit.
THEY KEPT very quiet.
BUT JUST at the moment.
I WAS dozing off.
I HEARD one of the women.
WITH TEARS in her voice.
MAKE FRANTIC appeal.
FOR A pair of shoes.
FOR HER little baby.
AND I went to sleep.
AND IN my sleep.
I SAW a parade.
OF THOUSANDS of babies.
ON CHESTNUT street.
IN PHILADELPHIA.
AND THEIR poor little feet.
WERE ALL of them bare.
AND THE day was cold.
AND THEY carried banners.
AND ON the banners.
WERE THE painted words.
"WE MUST have shoes."
• • •
AND THEN the scene changed.
AND I saw their mothers.
DOWN ON their knees.
IN A hotel room.
ALL SHOOTING craps.
AND PLEASE, Mr. Mayor.
IF I send you their names.
• • •
WON'T YOU order them home.
BECAUSE AS long as they're here.
I'LL GET no sleep.
OR I'LL dream of babies.
WITH COLD, bare feet.

I THANK you.

Lawyers Need Trouble
Elephant and Mouse
Very Busy Japan
Why Not "in Church?"

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

The biggest lawyers in the State of New York, including Mr. Hughes, late of the Supreme bench, will fight on the side of five Assemblymen expelled because they were elected on the Socialist ticket.

That is double wisdom. The lawyers want to save their friends of frightened finance from a foolish mistake.

Besides, nothing is more valuable to a big lawyer than little men whose talk and plans frighten the large financial whales.

When the big financier is frightened, which he usually is, he needs his clever lawyer to soothe him, saying: "They can't take your property. They can't put you in jail."

The mouse that makes the elephant tremble increases the influence of the elephant-keeper. A little Socialist Assemblyman, not important if left free to spout in this large conservative country, is the mouse that makes the financial elephant call piteously for Elihu Root, Levy Mayer and the other legal mahouts.

In one preliminary fight a Korean army has beaten Japanese forces, so says a dispatch from Honolulu. Such things as this, plus the "heavy, heavy, what hangs over" hostility of huge China, may interfere usefully with Japan's innocent dreams of Asiatic and world power. Uncle Sam should not trust to Korea or China, but take out his own insurance.

Japan shipping arms into Mexico, and a Japanese warship escorting the shipment. How does that impress you as a friendly after-the-war "all good little friends together" proposition?

The fact that England, Japan's ally, is filled with bitter and not at all concealed hatred of the United States because of our failure to take the United States pocketbook into the peace league, makes the Japanese and Mexican enterprise all the more interesting. It ought to teach Americans that they need to keep their money and their men for use at home.

The Reverend Percy Stickney Grant, of the Church of the Ascension on Fifth avenue, New York City, has learned something. His bishop, says: "I object to the use of the church for the airing of radical opinions. I would have no objection if the parish house were used for that purpose."

Dr. Grant, who opposed deporting radicals, may have to stand trial.

What would the Founder of Christianity have said had a "bishop" told him he must not use the temple for the expression of his radical views, driving out money-changers, turning over their tables and beating them?

That was radical conduct, nearly two thousand years ago, and the World's Greatest Teacher paid the penalty. Yet the temple was the right place for that radical protest.

And if a modern preacher has anything to say worth hearing, should he not say it in church? Why tell him to hide in the parish house or the subway to say it?

Americans do not mind criticizing themselves, but can get along without help from England. George Bernard Shaw, who swells the ranks of comfortable Socialists with broad views and a generous income, says Americans are all savages and wonders when we will pull down the Liberty statue.

Mr. Shaw knows that England does not throw out labor men and Socialists only because the English financiers, less able than those in America, are also less courageous.

The British Tory spirit is willing enough. It is not so long since the great Dr. Arnold of Rugby, father of Mrs. Humphry Ward, said, concerning freedom of speech, that he would allow Mr. Mills just as long to express his opinions as it would take to send him to Botany Bay.

Prophet's Fantastic Vision Seen With Eyes of Flesh

The automobile is simply another marker in the progress of civilization. For civilization means increase of life.

We not only live faster these days than in any previous epoch, but we live more and live better.

The laboring man today backs up to a steam radiator and warms himself at a contrivance that would have turned King Henry the Eighth green with envy, if that monarch could have had a dream-glimpse of it while he stood blistering on one side and freezing on the other before an open fireplace in his draughty palace.

And what would Aucassin and Nicolette have thought, when they got married and went to housekeeping, and he had to climb out of a warm bed to a stone floor, and donning his breeks, had to build a fire on the hearth with a flint and steel, while she followed shivering to make cakes and fry the bacon in a pan over a fire that wafted smoke in her face, and all that—what would they have thought if their far vision could have seen the bride of today getting breakfast over a gas stove, and eating it in a Summer-warm dining room, kept constantly at an equable temperature by a central heating system?

It is the style these days to berate the present and poetize over the past. But who would want to have lived in those "good, old days," before forks were invented, or socks, or breakfast food, or typewriters, or tobacco, or newspapers?

Back in 1896 P. T. Barnum exhibited in his Greatest Show on Earth, as one of the new and outlandish freaks he had discovered—an automobile.

At the 1900 Automobile Show in Madison Square Garden they had a track made so that the public could see that the new-fangled horseless buggies could really run.

People now in middle life remember the first automobile they ever saw. It clanked like a threshing machine and snorted like a bull of Bashan.

Today, at the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street in New York, and on the main thoroughfares of Cleveland, Chicago, Los Angeles and every other considerable American city, the motors go by end to end, a continuous procession, like swarming beetles.

Taxicabs for the sojourner, luxurious limousines for the wealthy, rakish low wheeled boats for the sporty and the myriad cheaper cars of the hoi polloi fly past every waking hour of the day, and long into the night.

It is a picture of our national spirit—"whoop, la; we don't know where we're going, but we're on our way!"

The Wheel means eventually the end of War; for War is the product of barriers, of the hates and pettinesses and fevered egotisms that fomented behind barriers; and the Wheel signifies that barriers shall be no more.

It means that we are citizens of the round earth, and not of this or that favored spot upon it.

It is nothing but Wheel.

It grew out of the brightest thought that ever entered a human brain; that by putting a bucket of rock oil under the buggy seat you could dispense with the horse.

At first Old Dobbin shied at his roaring competitor, but now he moves sad-eyed aside to let the cat-footed, velvet-gliding motor pass.

The Automobile is both a Luxury and a Necessity.

The very acme of Sybaritic dreams is to own one of these exquisitely upholstered doll houses on wheels, a cross between a featherbed and a Pullman Palace Car, and glide down the boulevard, with a liveried chauffeur at the wheel, a hot-house rose in the bouquet holder, an expensive rug over your lap, and hoot away the common foot passengers, and think to yourself: "Oh! if I could only stand on the sidewalk and see myself go by!"

But it is more than a plaything. It has redeemed country life. It has relieved the isolation of the farmer's wife. It has multiplied the efficiency of the grocery store and the postoffice. It has lured the human race out of stuffy rooms into the open air.

This Wheel has rolled Humanity back to Nature.

The workers upon these splendid vehicles are building the United States of America.

The ingenuity, enterprise, craftsmanship and artistic feeling that have made these marvellous road engines are the very qualities that shall make this country of ours forge onward to a glorious tomorrow.

"Chariots and Horses of Fire!" The prophet of old saw them in a fantastic vision. We see them with our eyes of flesh!

Ex-Soldier's Suggestion

I have noted with interest the stand your paper has taken all along in regard to the six months' pay for the soldiers, sailors and marines in consideraton of their noble efforts in bringing the late war to a victorious close, and wish to say that it, I believe, has the approval of fair-minded citizens of this glorious U. S. A. I hope that your fight has not been in vain and that we will receive at least some token of appreciation from the government, for, most of us, though we are working, cannot seem to get ahead of the game at all and are worse off than when we started. Now, if it is going to take years to get us on our feet again (if we ever receive the six months' pay or any other from the government, other than the paltry $60 which they gave us and which just outfitted us with clothing, etc.), I would like to offer a suggestion. This is the richest government on the face of the earth, and also the best. Now, instead of them lending other nations billions of dollars, with which they can build materials of war, and, later on, come over and try to make us bow down to them, why not offer to assist the returned veterans of the war in this way; lend out, to all who make application, on a percentage basis, say from $500 to $1,000 to each man for so many years—say one, two, three, etc. This, I think, would stimulate business and make men self-supporting once again and also raise them from where they are at the present time. I honestly believe that many would avail themselves of this opportunity and would start up in one business or another, and it would benefit the government in the long run.

AN EX-SERVICE MAN.
